WARSHIPS OFF TO SPANISH WATERS

Britain Moves Another Cruiser And Germany Submarines

REBELS TRAPPED: BESIEGED IN UNIVERSITY CITY

Madrid, Yesterday.

Encirclement of the insurgent forces which have held the University city sector, on the western outskirts of Madrid, for the past five months, is announced by General Miaja, commander-in-chief of the Madrid defence forces.

IN VIEW OF RECENT RUMOURS THAT GENERAL FRANCO, THE REBEL LEADER, INTENDED TO CALL OFF THE ATTACK ON MADRID AND CONCENTRATE ON SUBDUING THE PROVINCES, IT SEEMS THAT THE LONG SIEGE OF THE CAPITAL MAY AT LAST BE RAISED.

MEANWHILE SPECULATION HAS BEEN ROUSED BY ANNOUNCEMENT THAT WARSHIPS ARE BEING MOVED BY BOTH BRITAIN AND GERMANY INTO SPANISH WATERS. EXPLANATION IS THAT THE MOVE IS CONNECTED WITH THE CONTROL SCHEME. BRITAIN HAS ORDERED H.M.S. SHROPSHIRE TO NORTH SPANISH WATERS AND GERMANY HAS SENT TWO SUBMARINES TO REINFORCE HER NAVAL CONTINGENT.

A desperate Republican offensive, which began yesterday, was assisted by a fleet of 70 aeroplanes.

Germany Sends Submarines

Berlin, Yesterday.

The German submarines U 25 and U 27 left Kiel for the North Sea to-day en route to Spanish waters.

The submarines will join the other units of the German navy stationed off the coast of Spain for the protection of German shipping and control of foreign ships destined for Spanish ports in the area assigned to the Reich by the London control committee.—Trans-Ocean.

H.M.S. Shropshire Sent

REINFORCEMENT OF BRITISH STRENGTH

London, Yesterday.
The 10,000-ton cruiser H.M.S. Shropshire is being despatched to the northern coast of Spain to reinforce British naval units in Spanish waters.

British naval forces on the northern Spanish coast at present consist of only four destroyers, which are temporarily based on the French port of St. Jean de Luz.

Increasing military operations in the north of Spain is understood to be the reason for despatching the Shropshire.—Trans-Ocean.

Rebel Claims

Salamanca, Yesterday.

A rosy picture of feats of arms by the insurgent forces is painted in a communique issued by rebel headquarters here to-day.

The main fighting took place on the Madrid front, where it is claimed many Republican attacks were repulsed with heavy losses.

The struggle in the Casa del Blanca sector is stated to have been particularly violent.

Republican losses are estimated by the insurgents at the high figure of 2,800.

They also claim that among the prisoners captured were Russians, Czech-Slovakians and Asturian miners.

Following yesterday's action a full has descended on the front and to-day was marked by nothing more energetic than occasional sniping.

The communique admits that Republican planes carried out a successful air raid on Valladolid on Friday.—Trans-Ocean.

Belgian Soldiers Stricken

Liege, Yesterday.

More than 100 Belgian soldiers of a regiment stationed in Liege showed signs of severe ptomaine poisoning shortly after eating supper on Friday night.

The condition of 49 of the men was serious and they were rushed to hospital, where they are now undergoing treatment.—Trans-Ocean.

BELGIAN KING AND ELECTION

BRUSSELS, YESTERDAY.

THE IMPORTANCE ATTACHED TO THE FORTHCOMING BY-ELECTION BETWEEN THE PREMIER, M. PAUL VAN ZEELAND, AND THE REIST LEADER, M. LEON DEGRELLE, IS EMPHASISED BY THE OPEN ENTRY INTO THE DISPUTE OF KING LEOPOLD HIMSELF.

As is the case with the British monarchy, the King of the Belgians does not play too prominent a part in national politics, and this departure from usual practice has caused a sensation.

King Leopold yesterday issued a statement which virtually signifies that he is strongly opposed to the Reist movement.

He repudiates accusations and claims made by M. Degrelle and allies himself in support of the Premier.

A similar statement was issued yesterday by the Roman Catholic Church, indicating that in spite of the fierce propaganda with which he has been deluging the Belgian people for weeks past, and the support of the Communists for M. van Zeeland, M. Degrelle's hopes of a triumph are practically ruined.—Trans-Ocean.

Britain Now Well Prepared For Emergencies

—SIR THOMAS INSKIP

LONDON, YESTERDAY.

BRITAIN IS WELL PREPARED TO-DAY FOR PRACTICALLY ALL EVENTUALITIES, SHOULD AN INTERNATIONAL EMERGENCY ARISE.

Huge reserves of shells and guns have already been built up.

The fastest and most efficient tank in the world will soon be at the disposal of the army in great numbers;

A multitude of equipment for the manufacture of aeroplanes on an unprecedented scale are nearing big deliveries.

This summary of Britain's preparations were outlined last night in a speech by Sir Thomas Inskip, the Minister for Coordination of Defence, who said that he hoped they would be able to complete the five-year rearmament programme within the allotted period.

The programme was being carried out on the whole with great and noteworthy success.

A large reserve of shells was steadily accumulating and the Admiralty had nearly completed arrangements for acquiring the necessary supplies of fuel for the Navy.

Guns, air frames, air engines and a multitude of scientific apparatus were nearing big deliveries.

Referring to a statement recently published in a London newspaper that there was scarcely more than a fortnight's supply of wheat and flour in the country, Sir Thomas said that there was no reason for supposing that there was not something like three months' supply.

Referring to the world outlook, he said that until the League of Nations became what they had dreamed, the British Empire held forth as the greatest pacifying force in the world to-day.

FINE TEMPER

Britain had never been finer in temper or more unshaken in spirit than to-day. What gave peculiar strength to the Government in this grave time in the history of the world was that the nation was substantially united.—British Wireless.

Eden's Trip To Belgium

London, Yesterday.

Mr. Eden's trip to Brussels has nothing to do with the negotiation for a new Western Pact.

So declares "The Times," commenting on the forthcoming visit to the Belgian capital of the Foreign Minister, M. Spaak, on questions touching both countries.

The visit, of course, will have a natural connection with the conversations Mr. Eden recently had with the King of the Belgians in London.—Trans-Ocean.

The visit, says the journal, is intended for a personal exchange of opinion with the Belgian Premier, M. van Zeeland, and the Foreign Minister, M. Spaak, on questions touching both countries.

The visit, of course, will have a natural connection with the conversations Mr. Eden recently had with the King of the Belgians in London.—Trans-Ocean.

PRINCE GIVES UP ROYAL TITLE FOR ROMANCE

Bucharest, Yesterday.

Europe's rapidly thinning Royal ranks lost another member to-day in the person of Prince Nicholas of Rumania, the 34-year-old heir presumptive to King Carol's throne.

Prince Nicholas was deprived of his Royal rights and all his titles and prerogatives by the Crown Council.

REASON FOR THE STEP, WHICH HAS CAUSED A SENSATION IN RUMANIA, IS MADAME SAVEANU, THE BEAUTIFUL DIVORCED WIFE OF A MEMBER OF THE RUSSIAN DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

PRINCE NICHOLAS CONTRACTED A SECRET MORGANATIC MARRIAGE WITH MADAME SAVEANU IN 1931, EVER SINCE WHEN THE COUNCIL HAVE BEEN URGING HIM TO DIVORCE HER, WHICH HE HAS STEADFASTLY REFUSED TO DO.

Prince Nicholas finally again refused to renounce Madame Saveanu in a letter which was considered at yesterday's Council meeting, which led to the latter body depriving him of his Royal rights.

A PRIVATE CITIZEN

It is understood that Prince Nicholas will now leave the country as a private citizen.

Announcement of the action (says Reuter) was contained in an official communique issued after the close of the Council meeting, which sat for several hours.

The meeting was attended by the heads of the political parties and was presided over by King Carol himself.

TWO NEW CARDINALS IN MAY

Rome, Yesterday.

Two new Cardinals will be created by Pope Pius in a public ceremony to be held before the end of May, when His Holiness celebrates his eightieth birthday, says an announcement from the Vatican.

After attending various ceremonies in honour of his birthday, the outstanding one of which will be the opening of the Papal Academy of Science, the Pope will transfer his residence to his summer seat at Castelgandolfo early in June.

His Holiness will leave the Vatican, it is understood, for reasons of health.—Trans-Ocean.

MR. WU TE-CHEN SAILS

May Return For Visit
To Shanghai

Shanghai, Yesterday.

After several postponements, Mr. Wu Te-chen sailed on the "President Coolidge" at 8 o'clock this evening.

Mr. Wu is expected to return to Shanghai some time next month for a visit and also possibly to take his wife back to Canton with him.

Mrs. Wu is at present ill in Shanghai.—Reuter.

Tendency To Fog

The Royal Observatory reports that the anticyclone continues to move eastward, pressure now being highest over the Korean Sea.

The depression remains over Manchuria.

Forecast:—B. winds, moderate, fine to cloudy, tendency to fog later.

Prince Nicholas of Rumania, who has renounced his title and rights.

Beardmore Strike Persists

London, Yesterday.

There is still no sign of an end to the strike in the Beardmore works in Glasgow, where important work in connection with Britain's rearmament programme is being held up by the large-scale walk-out.

The striking engineers are disappointed by the fact that the Minister of Labour, Mr. Ernest Brown, is not intervening in the dispute.

Families of the strikers are drawing relief but the engineers themselves are not getting strike wages.

This is because the national executive of the Amalgamated Engineers Union refuses to recognise the strike.—Reuter.

INDIAN FIRE WALKER TESTS MADE

London, Yesterday.

A scientist of London University watched a demonstration of fire walking by two Indian fire walkers to-day.

Blazing logs were raised to a temperature of 740 degrees Centigrade when Ahmed Rissain, one of the Indians, followed by three English volunteers, walked over the burning embers.

After their hazardous walk the feet of the men were found to have small blisters.

A report on the demonstration will be issued shortly.—Reuter.

JOCKEY INJURED YESTERDAY

Heavily Thrown In Last Race

Mr. S. Y. Liang was given a severe shaking on the race-course in the last event yesterday, when he was heavily thrown by Tabby Cat.

After first aid treatment, he was taken in an ambulance to the Young Wo Nursing Home.

Later last evening, it was stated that Mr. Liang was suffering from concussion and a deep gash on the left arm.

The race was won by Mr. Chusta's Happy Venture, which gave its rider, Mr. I. C. Harris, his tenth win and graduation from the Novice Class.

BRITISH FORCE AMBUSHED SIX OFFICERS KILLED

NEW DELHI, YESTERDAY.

SIX BRITISH OFFICERS WERE KILLED AND FIVE WOUNDED TO-DAY IN THE SHARPEST ENGAGEMENT BETWEEN BRITISH TROOPS IN INDIA AND REVOLTING TRIBESMEN FOR MANY YEARS.

The clash, in which the British troops are believed to have been caught in an ambush, occurred in Waziristan, on the North-West Frontier, where tribesmen have been on the war-path for the past week or so.

In announcing the tragic results of the clash, an official communique states that the total unconfirmed casualties are given in a despatch from the frontier as 25 killed and 40 wounded.

This is the first major engagement to have occurred in the present trouble on the border, and it follows the bombing of a large area of rebel territory by Royal Air Force machines.—Reuter.

PARIS SUMMER OPENINGS

PARIS.—The first openings reveal no startling changes in the silhouette; however, there is a wealth of new in colour, details, fabrics and accessories, which makes the collections very exciting.

Dress shoulders are normal, necklines are generally high, with a tendency for lower ones in afternoon frocks. Bodices are fitted and often draped, or finished with sashes, to accentuate snugness. Sleeves are simple, varying from short to full-length straight ones. Skirts are frequently dramatized, detracting attention from the upper silhouette. This is interpreted in many ways. Circular, full or shortish pleated skirts are again in the limelight; box pleats are especially good. Some woven fabrics give the effect of knife-pleating. Pressed ridges in flared and gored skirts are strongly developed by many houses. Very full gypsy skirts are shown for formal afternoon cocktail frocks by Rochas, Schiaparelli, Mainbocher and Patou. Schiaparelli makes this gypsy skirt in long afternoon-length with a low evening decolletage. Patou shows the same length and decolletage.

Slender Or Voluminous

TWO evening silhouettes are emphasized: one features the slender line with instep-length skirt and low-cut neckline. It is shown by Lavin, Schiaparelli, Mainbocher and Maggy Rouff. The other is full-skirted and romantic. This appears in practically every house in an exaggerated or discreet version. This romantic tendency is felt also in accessories and hats. Flowing black veils drape afternoon hats. Shoes come in romantic colours such as blue, red, green and purple.

In most couture houses there is an ensemble revival, a plain or printed coat and dress, or a plain coat and a printed frock (or the reverse) being combined. Full-length coats, open from neck to hem or meeting at the neck and waistline, definitely link up with their companion dresses. Fabric cape ensembles, the capes coming in all lengths,

Silhouette Unchanged: Big Fabric Interest are shown in a limited extent. Suits are important everywhere. In the main, jackets are short or a longish hip-length; they may be boxy or fitted, and either single or double breasted; usually they are fastened from the bust to the waistline. Skirts and jackets may be of a contrasting fabric or colour, or both; for example, a checked, striped or plaid jacket is shown with a plain skirt, or vice versa. Suits in a solid colour are brightened with blouses; this is notable in Creed's shantung suits. Jacket revers in a contrasting colour are important.

Molyneux's One Piece

MOLYNEUX's one-piece dresses with full pleated skirts worn with fitted jackets are arousing favourable comment; this is also true of his loose-back coats, shown over slim frocks. Other houses show vividly coloured short and fitted or pen jackets with dark dresses; these are important. Gay, too, are bright print jackets or sashes on dark frocks. Dark frocks are always relieved by some vivid colour or crisp white. Full-length sports coats of the redingote type have soft back fullness; some unbelted coats are made with an easy, moderate swing starting at the shoulder blades. Such coats are largely of Scotch or pastel plaids or checks; they are also in pencil-striped woollens or vivid pastel tweeds. Silk afternoon coats with loose backs—this includes.

Embroidery is extremely important in all collections, for both daytime and evening. Patou shows much embroidery of all kinds—machine, Beauvais, sequin, bead, disk, palette, thread, felt and silk. Because of the coronation, elaborate silver and gold embroideries, worked on sheer fabrics and metal brocades, are in glistening evidence.

KEEP FIT

The Women's League of Health and Beauty

(First of a series of exercises to be published weekly in the "Sunday Herald")

FEET EXERCISES

KEEP health in your feet; because, like all other parts of the body, what they need is to have the blood circulate freely through them; and to be stretched and relaxed by means of scientific exercises.

Remember, they have about thirty joints apiece, and each one has to be in perfect working order, if absolute "foot comfort" is to be enjoyed. And remember also that the condition of your feet has a definite effect on your mind, and even on pavements, tire the sensitive sole of the foot.

(2) Wear stockings that are neither too loose nor too tight, but exactly the right size, and that have no seam in the sole.

(3) Practise the following exercises every day.

(1) Sit in the correct League position, tummy drawn in, head erect, feet out in front, heels stretched outwards.

(a) Stretch the toes down to the floor, pulling on the insteps. Keep the knees touching the floor.

(b) Stretch the backs of the heels, bringing the toes up as your spirits. Feet that ripple with ecstatic movement send messages of their joy quivering to your brain, until you feel you want to dance to gay music, or run in some big contest, or walk for miles and miles—don't they? These are the sort of feet we all want to possess.

Well, you can help yourself towards possessing them if you:

(1) Pay great attention to your choice of shoes, making sure that the ones you choose give all the joints in your feet free play and are properly balanced as regards the position of the heel. (In town, soles should not be too thin, because stone high as possible, and making the instep and ankle work loosely.

(2) Sit as in (1), but cross one leg over the other at the knees.

(a) Draw large complete circles in the air, a big one with the toes, a small one with the heel, working the ankle joint very freely, but keeping the knee steady. Keep heel on floor, well stretched.

Repeat with other foot. (b) Reverse the direction of the movement.

MAX FACTOR STAGES TYPICAL HOLLYWOOD OPENING IN LONDON

MAX Factor's luxurious new London Salon at 16, Old Bond Street, had its gala opening with Merle Oberon, the famous British and Hollywood film star as the official hostess of honour.

In addition to Miss Oberon, more than 2,000 guests attended, including scores of England's most popular celebrities of the screen and stage.

The entire affair was staged in typical Hollywood fashion, with klieg lights, movie cameras, newscasters, newspaper writers, lavish invitations, and entertainment innovations.

In actually bringing Hollywood to London, Max Factor is credited by the British press and public, alike, as having inaugurated the biggest opening of its kind in London.

The outstanding feature of the evening was a special trans-Atlantic telephone broadcast from Hollywood to London, with Merle Oberon talking with more than fifteen of her Hollywood film star friends.

Just as with important radio hook-ups, the telephone calls were transferred from four separate key locations, as Merle talked with each celebrity from various film studios and Max Factor's private office.

The first call was put through at 11 a.m., Hollywood time, which was 7 p.m. in London. It was to stage 8 on the R.K.O. Radio Studio lot, where Ginger Rogers was the first to talk with Miss Oberon. Following their informal chat, Miss Rogers was also interviewed over the telephone by the drama editor of the London "News Chronicle."

The call was then transferred to Max Factor's Hollywood Studio, and Davis Factor announced that London would next be transferred to the private dressing room of Frances Dee on the Paramount Studio lot, where Merle would talk with Miss Dee, Joel McCrea and Ida Lupino.

The continuous London call was then switched to stage 15 on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, where Merle talked with Maureen O'Sullivan and Freddie Bartholomew.

From M.G.M. London was connected with Max Factor's office in Hollywood again, and Merle talked with such famous stars of the screen as Rochelle Hudson, Edward Arnold, Gloria Swanson, Margot Grahame, Paul Kelly, Binnie Barnes, Charles "Buddy" Rogers, John Carradine, Eric Blore and others. Each star in Hollywood told the Londoners how much Max Factor has meant to motion pictures, and how much they know he will mean to the stars, as well as every woman, in London.

During the conversations with Merle Oberon, other notable celebrities in London were put on the wire to talk with their various friends in Hollywood. Among those who talked from there were Neil Hamilton, George Batridge, Claude Raker, and Eric Blore's sister.

Max Factor was the last speaker on the programme, offering his congratulations on the opening and his regrets on not being able to attend in person.

The programme was broadcast in London over a public address system which enable guests throughout the Max Factor Make-up Studio there to hear every conversation through the special loud speakers.

According to officials of the American and British telephone companies, this was the biggest telephone hook-up in the history of both the United States and England.

The cost of the trans-Atlantic telephone exceeded U.S.$2,500.

"He's twice as robust as when last I saw him, but there, I knew that 'California Syrup of Figs' taken regularly would do him a world of good."

"My experience with children of all types and ages has taught me that to keep the bowels regular is to keep them healthy. 'California Syrup of Figs' will do this naturally and safely, and so I recommend it always, especially for warding off those annoying colds and illnesses which do so interrupt schooling."

"'California Syrup of Figs' by its stimulating effect on the system brings healthy appetites and ensures radiant health in growing boys and girls."

"I find 'California Syrup of Figs' is a matter of fact, Mrs. Brown, I use it myself and recommend you to adopt it for the whole family. Be sure to get the genuine 'California Syrup of Figs.'"

"California Syrup of Figs"
NATURE'S OWN LAXATIVE

THESE Bodmin Scones ARE SIMPLE TO MAKE

1-lb. white flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls Royal Baking Powder; a good pinch of salt; 2-oz. lard; 2-oz. stoned chopped dates; 1/2 teaspoonful ground ginger; 1/2-oz. granulated sugar; approximately 1/2-pint milk to mix.

Sieve the flour, ginger, Royal Baking Powder and salt together. Rub the lard into the flour, add the dates and sugar. Mix well. Add sufficient milk to bring to a fairly soft dough. Roll out on a floured board until the dough is 1/4-in. thick. Cut into rounds, place on a greased baking sheet, brush with a little beaten egg and bake in a quick oven 12-15 minutes. Serve hot with butter and syrup.

Even a beginner at baking will have perfect success with these delicious scones. Just one thing to remember. For a delicate flavour and tender texture, your baking powder must be Royal. The recipe was planned for it. Take no chances with failure. When you buy baking powder, look for the Royal label.

True Pacifism Is Not The Outcome Of Sickened Sensibilities
Says The Rev. J. D. MacLean, Discussing

The Pukka Pacifist

We are all pacifists nowadays! Combatants and non-combatants alike declare their irrevocable desire for peace. Pacifism is a cut above the Church which still teaches that it is a Christian duty to kill, provided that one is on the "Right" side.

Oh yes, it is pukka to be a Pacifist. Don't let us have any squabbling about it, please: let's settle the matter beforehand, as gentlemen should; let us decide who'll use the rifle to kill the enemy, and who'll use the spade to bury him. Mr. P. S. Mumford, writing from the Cavalry Club, London, states that "pacifists are willing and anxious to work for the alleviation of all suffering caused by war... surely it would be to the benefit of all concerned that a common basis of agreement on this point should be found." Yes, we must do something about it! Some of the nicest of our boys and young men have convinced their headmasters and tutors of the sincerity of their belief that "all war is not merely wrong but futile." We must do something about it! The dear boys are terribly in earnest—we must give them a spade instead of a rifle!

Storm Clouds Over The World

What does it mean? Pacifism which is prepared to make such an agreement with any capitalist State is betraying itself for the more efficient prosecution of war by the State concerned. Pacifism is strongest in Britain, where, of all European countries, Socialism is weakest. Pukka Pacifism of this order is nothing but a direct product of Capitalism at its highest development. Indeed it is a modern necessity of the Capitalist system, and is fulfilling the function which organised religion held during the Industrial Era, it is providing the dope for the masses to keep them quiet and peaceably inclined. The unchecked growth of Pacifism of this order in Britain means only one thing, a thing which is demonstrated by Britain's failure to intervene against the Italian brutalities in Abyssinia, and against the rebels in Spain; it means, that for the first time in its history Capitalism is afraid of itself, afraid of a conflict of civil strife in which it will perish. It sees that conflict issuing from the storm-clouds that are piling up all over the world.

Here in China and away in Spain the issues are already joined, and the roots of the strife are spreading everywhere, deep underground in some places, but still spreading. Ideas travel faster in a world as small as ours!

English Capitalism is fully conscious of these facts and will stop at nothing to save itself, to prevent Englishmen from joining in the struggle with their brothers who are being butchered by the cannibalism of the capitalist block.

Pukka Pacifist Not An Arch-Hypocrite

But the Pukka Pacifist is not an arch-hypocrite. He has simply failed to analyse the situation in which he finds himself with sufficient honesty and thoroughness. For what is war apart from a conventional method of settling a dispute? It is fundamentally only a readjustment of capital. If a million and a half of men are killed in one year of war, it means simply that ten years' exploitation of humanity has been crammed into one year; it demonstrates with ferocious truth that under Capitalism a human being is but a single unit to be exploited according as the occasion demands and suits the whim or necessity of the ruling-class.

Until our Pukka Pacifists realise this truth their Pacifism will be no more use to society than a packet of heroin. Where then do the 'issues lie, and how are they to be faced? So long as we see the situation on the material level, and so long as our reaction to the maladjustment of material life is without religious direction and dynamic, so long will society alternate between degradation and despair.

Complete Religious Revolution

What is really required is a complete religious revolution which will be religious because it is complete and complete because it is religious. It will be committed not only to individual revolution but to social revolution; it will be an unprecedentedly complete Christianity.

Pacifism will be an essential element in such a Christianity but Socialist understanding will be a primary constituent.

I honestly believe that it is beyond the power of the organised Church as it exists at present to take the initiative in this matter. The present Christian institution is more likely to collapse before the pressure of the modern State.

Fascism And Organised Religion

Fascism as a religion may be a horrible perversion with which democracies can have nothing to do, but Fascism is a truer expression of modern European man's idealism and behaviour than is the religion of the Church. Even Roman Catholicism has had to clemish her fists in the face of it. In the city of Munich, this year the percentage of children entered in Catholic Schools was only 4.9 as compared with last year's 34.9. In one single year Nazi pressure was strong enough to effect such a reduction. Indeed in modern Germany the organised Church is only able to resist the pressure where, as under the inspiration of Karl Barth's transcendentalism, she has ceased to make any secular claims whatsoever.

Not A Kind Of Magic

But although there appears to be little to hope for from the organised Church, the solution of the entire situation is to be found in the Christian experience when men enter upon it and undertake it with a complete seriousness. Christian experience, like all religious experience is primarily subjective. Like charity, religion begins at home, and this new experience of Christianity will be achieved through the self-examination of all those who desire it.

Religion is not a kind of magic which proceeds from our endurance of life and each other.

It is not an intellectual problem though we have to win our way with an inadequate intellect as an initial handicap.

It is not an emotional work fountain which only works when we pull certain levers, nor is it, and this is most important, a product of a collection of like-minded people seeking to propagate a point of view.

Religion begins in personal experience, to be truly born it must spring from the deepest consciousness of the individual, it must be the actual outcome of his experience, and his inevitable reaction to life itself.

Adherence The Habit Of The Parasite

For these reasons we have to cast aside the hope of discovering some form of religion which people with similar views can accept. Agreement is only possible when individuals have made up their own minds and reached their own unqualified conclusions. Until then the mass of men seek some adherence and since adherence is a habit of the parasite we cannot hope for very much from men and women who are but adherents of some historic and experienced truth.

Pukka Pacifists are individuals who have become adherents to a certain truth which is not their own experienced possession. The true Pacifist is the individual who has achieved within himself, (in some degree), the positive experience of Jesus of Nazareth; his pacifism is not the outcome of sickened sensibilities but is the direct expression of his knowledge of his brotherhood with all men, a real kinship which he is prepared to demonstrate in truth, and more costly wage than that involved in a mere refusal to commit murder.

FOOD "WASHED" WITH PURE AIR

Constantly Circulating

in the Modern Air Conditioned
Refrigerator

Certain stored foods pass off impurities, unpleasant in odor, which are quickly absorbed by other foods. Thus food, to remain impurity-free and to prevent decay, must be kept in air that is constantly purified as well as chilled. Cold alone is not enough!

The new OLYMPIC ICE Refrigerator, utilizing SIX-SIDED REFRIGERATION, keeps vitalized fresh air constantly circulating around your food. It "picks up" odors and impurities, carries them to the melting ice film, where they are absorbed and eliminated through the drain pipe. Food odors cannot interchange!

Too, the new OLYMPIC Air Conditioned Refrigerator maintains the correct balance of moisture in the air, preventing foods from drying out. Foods retain their natural flavors, juices and vitamins.

Our Ice Service Man will gladly demonstrate the new OLYMPIC Refrigerator.

DUKE OF WINDSOR'S PLAN FOR WEDDING

TO TAKE PLACE AT TOURS AT THE END OF MAY

LONDON, YESTERDAY.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD IN QUARTERS CLOSELY CONNECTED WITH THE DUKE OF WINDSOR THAT THE EX-KING HAS DEFINITELY DECIDED TO MARRY MRS. WALLY SIMPSON IN FRANCE AND NOT IN AUSTRIA, AS PREVIOUSLY REPORTED.

May 31 is named as the date when the marriage will take place, this having been fixed owing to the Duke's desire that the wedding does not interfere with, or distract from, the Coronation celebrations in London.

SOME REPORTS, HOWEVER, STATE THAT THE MARRIAGE WILL BE SOLEMNISED ONLY TEN DAYS AFTER THE ACTUAL CORONATION, NAMELY, ON MAY 22.

IT IS NOT YET KNOWN WHEN THE DUKE OF WINDSOR WILL LEAVE AUSTRIA FOR FRANCE BUT IT IS THOUGHT HE WILL NOT DO SO TILL THE LAST MOMENT.

At present the Royal "exile" is staying in a secluded villa at Appenzel, a small village between St. Wolfgang and Strobl, in the Upper Austrian lake district.

He is not expected to leave the villa, where he has as his only companion Sir Godfrey Thomas, until the day previous to the wedding, which will take place at (says a Trans-Ocean message) Decade Castle, near Tours, where Mrs. Simpson is now staying.

The Duke has had many offers of castles from friends all over Europe for his honeymoon, but it is understood he has decided to spend it in the Austrian Alps, where he feels most at home.

CARINTHIA HONEYMOON

It is understood that he has leased the castle of Count Paul Munster, which stands in an isolated position high up in the mountains on the Austro-Italian frontier in Carinthia.

Here the Duke will be able to enjoy to the full his well-known love of skiing and other winter sports, and the remoteness of the castle will enable the honeymoon couple to escape publicity.

In the best of health, the Duke is living a quiet life in his secluded villa.

DETECTIVES FEWER

With Sir Godfrey Thomas as practically his sole companion, he goes for long walks, golfs, skis or skates. He is gradually dispensing with the large bodyguard of detectives which always attended him when he was living at Castle Ennsfeld, and now has only two or three attendants.

As at Ennsfeld, he takes no part in the night life of the district and in the evening sits in his bedroom typing letters to his friends.

NETHERLANDS AIR CONTROL

Council To Report On Tragedy

The Hague, Yesterday. The recently created Netherlands Air Council held its first session here to-day.

The opening session of the Council, which has been appointed to control aviation and to investigate air accidents, held an enquiry into the circumstances attending the crash of a Dutch sports plane, when one was killed. — Trans-Ocean.

"TREASURE BOX" STOLEN

Suspect Leaves Village In A Car

A "treasure box," containing jewellery and money to the value of $861 has been stolen from the house of a Chinese woman, Lui Kai-oi, residing at No. 91A, Tai Kin Village, Un Long.

Detectives yesterday were searching for a Chinese named Tang, who is suspected to be connected with the theft. He was seen leaving the village in a car, and disappeared after he had alighted in Prince Edward Road.

DRAMATIC GESTAPO RAIDS MANY ARRESTS IN GERMANY

Gestapo, Germany's secret police, are reported in the French press to have made a sensational round-up of leading German industrialists, royalists and persons closely connected with the old Steel-Helmet (ex-Servicemen's) organisation.

Those arrested are alleged to have been expressing disapproval of the National Socialist regime under Herr Hitler.

Among them are Dr. Paul Sturmer, former chief of the Steel Helms, and the writer, Willy Krasst, and other associates of the Crown Prince and ex-Empress Hermine, second wife of Wilhelm II.

The Steel Helms—a conservative organisation of ex-Servicemen known as the "Stahlhelm League"—were dissolved throughout Germany by Herr Hitler in November, 1935, after a long and bitter struggle.

Herr Hitler declared that the aim of the organisation—"to preserve the spirit of the old German army"—had been fulfilled and that there was no reason for its continued existence.

Reports of the arrest were published in the "Echo de Paris," quoting a Berlin message to a noted Swiss daily.

BY-ELECTION AT YORK

Mr. Lawrence Lumley's Appointment

London, Yesterday. The appointment of Mr. Lawrence Lumley, M. P., to succeed Lord Brabourne as Governor of Bombay, necessitates a by-election for the representation of York.

At the General Election he stood as National Conservative and had a majority over Labour of 6,274. Since 1935, he has served as Parliamentary Private Secretary to the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Eden. Mr. Lumley is nephew and heir to Lord Scarborough. — British Wireless.

Joy-Rider Smash Arrests Expected

SOLDIERS INJURED BY SHATTERED GLASS OF WINDSCREEN

Joy-riding in a motor-car belonging to Mr. E. Himsworth, First Magistrate in Kowloon, turned out to be a painful adventure for two men, alleged to be soldiers, who not only wrecked the vehicle, but also badly injured themselves in crashing into a tree near the Hunghom Wireless Station. The crash came when they rounded the bend at the railway bridge at a very high speed early yesterday morning.

After the crash, the men were seen climbing out of the car holding bloodstained handkerchiefs to their faces.

On the arrival of police, who were informed of the incident by a passing motorist, a trail of blood was found leading towards the sea, indicating that the men went down to the shore to wash their injuries.

Arrests are expected to be made in a Kowloon barracks to-day.

TAKEN FROM STAR FERRY

The car was parked at the Star Ferry by Mr. E. Himsworth on Friday evening. The joy-riders took possession early yesterday morning and then drove off rapidly along Salisbury and Chatham Roads.

On reaching the bend at the railway bridge near Hunghom Wireless Station, the vehicle skidded in taking the curve at a high speed and crashed into a tree with such force that it snapped off.

WINDSCREEN SMASHED. The front portion of the vehicle was badly damaged, and the windscreen was smashed to smithereens.

Bloodstains were also discovered on the seat of the car and the inference that severe cuts were caused by flying glass is considered as rendering concealment impossible.

Incident Last Night

If a traffic policeman had not come on the scene at an opportune moment, a further case of motor-car joyriding may have now been engaging the attention of the authorities.

Shortly before midnight, the furious expostulations of a Chinese driver and a traffic constable outside the Hong Kong Hotel, attracted many to the scene. It transpired that a European, rather "under the weather," was sitting in a luxurious sedan car and attempting to start it. On the intervention of the constable, he shouted for a taxi and made off down the road in the direction of the ferry.

THREW HIMSELF FROM ROOF

Shocking Suicide Fall Last Night

Throwing himself from a height of over 70 feet, Chong Wo, 35, was instantly killed last evening near the Central Fire Station.

In his pocket was found a letter stating that he was in a bad financial condition.

The deceased went to the roof of his residence, No. 107, Des Voeux Road Central and jumped from the roof of No. 108.

GLOUCESTER SHOW

The many who attended the dinner-dance at the Gloucester Hotel last night were again delighted with the well-executed dances of the Hersey twins.

Their colourful programme included a "Ballroom Fantasy" to the famous composition of Saint Saens, "Le Cygne," which, as expected, proved the most popular number of the evening.

Serious Accident At Star Ferry

An employee of the Star Ferry, Ho King, was seriously injured when knocked down yesterday by car No. 4416, at the entrance to the Star Ferry Wharf.

He was admitted to the G.C.H. suffering from fractured ribs and internal injuries.

Amen To "Amens"

"This is to give warning that in future no 'Amens' will be sung at the end of hymns," writes the Rev. S. C. Thompson, Vicar of Holy Trinity, Haverstock-hill, Hampstead, in his parish magazine.

"The incessant singing of 'Amens' is a needless repetition, quite out of harmony with the modern spirit."

Popular Couple Married

Miss Blackmore And Mr. J. J. Forster

Two well-known European families were united yesterday by the marriage of Miss Raymond F. Blackmore, eldest daughter of Mr. E. W. Blackmore, Director of Messrs. Blackmore, Basto and Shank, Manager of The Vibro Piling Company, Limited, and Mrs. Blackmore, to Mr. John J. Forster, son of the late Captain John and Mrs. Forster, at St. Theresa's Church, Kowloon Tong, Father Gallagher, assisted by Father Irlanda, officiating.

The bride, charmingly dressed in a gown of white satin, entered the church on the arm of her father, and was attended by two little bridesmaids, Miss Annett Landis, and her sister, Miss Yvonne Blackmore, who wore Princess gowns of pink and blue tulle, respectively.

Mr. D. M. Helms attended the bridegroom as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 7, Devon Road, the guests numbering over 200.

The newly-married couple, who received many handsome gifts, will spend their honeymoon at Sheung-shui.

Kalzana is a remarkable food containing no drugs whatsoever.

In hot countries one's diet and the extent to which one perspires tend to decrease the mineral contents of the body. Many complaints such as irritability, high blood pressure, dizziness, acidity, which are so often ascribed to "the climate" are due largely to this loss of minerals.

When you do not feel as well as you should, start taking Kalzana tablets. They will soon put you right.

Clue Found In Bicycle Tyre

"Robberies of this description do happen and we have enough to do without running after false reports," said Det. Sub-Inspector L. Whant, at the Central Magistracy yesterday when he charged Wong Kwai-choi, 20, a shop fook, with embezzlement of $700 from the Shun Hing Bicycle Shop in Hennessy Road and with making a false report of a robbery at Wing Lok Street.

Defendant was sentenced to three months' imprisonment on each charge.

Outlining the case, Inspector Whant said defendant had been employed by the firm for seven years. One of his duties was to collect accounts. At eleven a.m. on Thursday he was sent to cash a draft for $3,660 at a Chinese Bank. He did not return by noon, and the owner rang up the bank, to be informed that the draft had been met.

A little before two o'clock, defendant walked into the Central charge-room and said he had been attacked by two men and robbed of $700. His pockets were torn and the report seemed genuine. The balance of the money was found in his belt.

FIRST SUSPICION

Defendant said he was pushing his bicycle because of a puncture but when the tyres were pumped up they were found to be in order. He later said he lost the money gambling and he was taken to No. 20 Spring Garden Lane to a vacant flat which gave evidence of having been used as a gambling place.

Later, defendant took the police to the slope of a hill and from a drain pipe took out $200 which he had placed there on his way to the Station. Defendant still maintained he had lost the rest of the money in gambling.

On the defendant's first report,

LAYMAN REPLIES TO "OCTAVE OF EASTER"

To one reader at least of the Rev. MacLean's contribution in last Sunday's "Sunday Herald," it is something of a mystery how an article entitled "Octave of Easter" came to be so much concerned with Communism. It also appears to him rather a sweeping move to drive the whole body of "intelligent and sincere" people into one of two camps—the Catholic Church or Communism. But these are merely minor points—symptoms, all the same, of that tendency to lose sight, in a flood of rhetoric, of the concrete issues at stake, which makes the ordinary layman so impatient with the ordinary sermon and thus helps to bring about the very state of affairs—that vast inertia—which was so truly described in that article as "heart-breaking."

The Rev. MacLean puts the blunt questions: "Wherein do we fail?" "What is wrong with the Churches' message?"

Are these questions mere rhetoric? Or does he require an answer?

Let a layman tell him. To take the second question first, the answer is simple. "Nothing—if they give it."

Hong Kong In 1937

The answer to the first question, on the other hand, might very easily run on till it filled a volume. It could be developed on general lines into a fully-fledged thesis dealing with all sorts of activities of all sections of the Christian Church at all periods of history. In so doing, it would be following the Emergency Unit and Police were turned out, causing a lot of inconvenience.

on the methods employed in the vast majority of cases by the Churches themselves—the avoidance at all costs of the essential and immediately relevant facts. A delightful, interesting, resounding, purely academic discussion which gets nowhere and accomplishes nothing.

Let us, then, be specific, and get to grips with the issue.

Let us deal, not with other places, but with Hong Kong—not with other times, but with 1937.

Three "Messages"

The following are three of the "messages" which Hong Kong has received during the past few months.

One minister (not an Episcopalian) devoted an entire Sunday morning address to a homily to his congregation on the importance of saying "Amen."

(And there is no reason why a congregation should not say "Amen"—but it wanted a message.)

Another went out of his way to twist the clear and unmistakable meaning of Matthew 19.11 into something entirely different, simply to support his special views on the divorce question, and sent more than one of his hearers away literally stunned to hear the Bible distorted in such a fashion, and for such a purpose, from a Christian pulpit.

(He has missed the point, apparently, a point known and respected by the world at large, that Christian love and charity—wide as the ocean and embracing, as they must and should do, sinner and saint alike—give thereby neither warranty nor endorsement for any lowering of the moral standards which are so integrally bound up with Christianity).

Stupid Emphasis

And a third, having had the truly inspired idea of convening a general Meeting of Christian Witnesses on Good Friday, utilised this golden opportunity by telling an eager and receptive mass meeting that Christ would help them, not merely to die, but to live for their country.

(As if the Son of God, the Creator of the Universe, Whose death on the Cross for suffering humanity was being remembered that day, were concerned with the lines which for convenience (for inconvenience) sake we have marked off on the map, or the stupid and preposterous emphasis which mankind insists on placing on these artificialities!)

They ask for bread—yes! for all their seeming "vast inertia," men know their need of "bread."

And they know bread when they see it.

And they receive—stones. Nearly two thousand years ago, the Son of God died for mankind just outside Jerusalem.

Stand Appealed

And in 1937, "intelligent and sincere people," regarding the way in which the Churches themselves treat this tremendous, universe-shaking event—the very core of Christianity—stand appalled. They look to the Churches to proclaim the foundations of their faith in clear, specific, unmistakable terms and to insist on the vital necessity for its personal application. They find, instead, Churches almost totally oblivious to the terrible import of their own message, delivering it, when they deliver it at all, in such terms of airy rhetoric that its vital personal bearing never even emerges.

Will the Churches here in Hong Kong look inward and consider this matter honestly and frankly? Or will they merely seek to justify their own present inertia in the things that matter, continue to express surprise at other people's, and leave things as they are? —Contributed.

ROLLED IN AGONY THROUGH INDIGESTION

A Nurse's Experience

Nurses know more than ordinary people about curing their ailments, but it wasn't until Nurse D. W. tried Maclean Brand Stomach Powder that she found lasting relief for the severe indigestion that troubled her.

"I have suffered for more years than I care to remember," she writes, "from what my mother calls 'spasms,' a very severe form of indigestion. Many a time I have rolled in agony for hours, bent double with pain, yet not daring to move for fear of getting it worse."

I tried countless remedies and all without success. Last year I had just come out of hospital after an operation, when I had a most alarming attack.

"My young sister, who always has Maclean Brand Stomach Powder in the house, persuaded me to try a dose, and I would not have believed that just a single dose would have had so instantaneous and marvellous an effect. It soothed as I swallowed it, and gradually all pain went."

"It is useless to try and explain my gratitude, but I assure you it is very sincere. Each time I feel an attack coming on, or I get an attack of indigestion, however slight, I fly to Maclean Brand Stomach Powder."

How bad is your stomach trouble? Even if it is as bad as this nurse's you can soon get rid of it with Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, the one with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle and carton. Also sold in tablet form.

H.K.V.D.C. INFANTRY RE-UNION

Responsible Tasks Of Portuguese In Local Defence

"Your figures of membership are impressive and go to prove the increasing popularity of the Volunteer movement among the Portuguese community in Hong Kong. But there is a danger in quoting numbers, for they can only be considered as representing progress if they are actually available when an emergency arises, and not only that, but available as trained and not untrained personnel," said Lieutenant-Colonel Anderson, Commandant of the H.K.V.D.C. at the annual dinner of the Corps Infantry at the Club Lusitano last night.

Major S. Jarvis, M.C., Commanding Officer of the Portuguese Company, was the principal host of the evening, and he was assisted by eight Portuguese staff officers and about 150 other ranks.

Among the numerous guests were:

H. E. Dr. Tamagnini Barbosa, Governor-Designate of Macao, His Lordship Bishop H. Valtorta, Brigadier Blissett, D.S.O., Col. H. C. Harrison, G.S.O.L., D.S.O., Col. Irwin, Col. H. B. L. Dowling, Lt. Col. Gredson, Mr. A. Laborinho, Consul for Portugal, Lt. Col. R. C. B. Anderson, M.C., O/C H.K.V.D.C., Frizelle, Adjutant, Hon. Mr. Leo d'Almada e Castro, Jr., and Messrs. Leo d'Almada e Castro, Sr., President of the Club Lusitano, J. P. Braga, E. J. de Figueiredo, A. M. L. Soares, P. M. N. da Silva, A. W. da Rosa, E. Leitao, President of the Club de Recreo, E. G. d'Aquino, President of the Liga Portuguesa, and Dr. R. A. C. Basto.

Sir Andrew Caldecott and the G.O.C., Major-General Bartholomew sent greetings and apologies for their inability to be present.

MAJOR JARVIS'S SPEECH
Following dinner, Major Jarvis, addressing the gathering, referred to the history of the Portuguese Company and said that the unit had made for itself a name in the Corps for keenness and efficiency in its work and proficiency in sporting and social activities. It would raise its standards and indeed would take too long to mention all those who have contributed to this happy position—they have in any case never been kept in the dark as to our feelings—but I cannot avoid referring to one or two. One person whose active support made a great deal of difference in the early and more difficult days—His Excellency Dr. Barbosa, Governor of Macao, has honoured us with his presence to-night. Dr. Barbosa made it quite clear that he for one was not in agreement with those who thought it wrong for a Portuguese to take his place in the defence of the Colony that has given him and his family a secure home in the building up of which his community has taken such a great part and in which it has so much at stake.

WELCOME TO DR. BARBOSA
This is the first occasion on which we have had the pleasure of Dr. Barbosa's company at our annual dinner and I take this opportunity of welcoming him among us and of thanking him in person.
Another gentleman I must mention is Colonel Harrison who, unfortunately, is shortly leaving Hong Kong. In spite of the vast amount of work he has had to do in making Hong Kong a place fit for soldiers to fight in, he has always found the time to help us with even the least of our difficulties. His general presence has graced many of our gatherings and in our work his aptitude for serving up a pill liberally coated with sugar but nevertheless purgative in action, has contributed greatly to the improvement in efficiency of the last few years.

NEW COMMANDANT
I wish, too, to take the opportunity of expressing to Col. Anderson, the Corps Infantry's pleasure at his appointment as Commandant and their congratulations upon his promotion. I am certain his predecessors in command will agree with me when I say that a regular Commandant is a necessity to the Corps' efficiency and that the authorities could hardly have made a happier choice.
On the subject of recruiting, Major Jarvis said that there must be many youngsters who could join the active ranks and many older men who would be useful in the anti-aircraft defences.
"Another factor we must bear in mind in our officers; we must look for the future officers of this unit to those who are not only capable from the point of view of education but also whose position in life will enable them to support the duties and responsibilities of commissioned rank. There are quite a number of young Portuguese of this type who have not joined the Corps. We are a very happy band—we have very interesting training and I am certain that any lad with backbone would enjoy and learn a great deal by joining. I therefore appeal to the Portuguese community to make this Coronation Year a bumper year for recruiting. (Applause.)

TENTH ANNIVERSARY
Lieut.-Col. Anderson congratulated the Portuguese Company of the H.K.V.D.C. on their 10th Anniversary of service in this Corps and on their past achievements, and in warm terms, thanked Major Jarvis for the loyal co-operation and able support he had at all times given him.
"There are only a few of us here to-night qualified to speak of the history of the Company since its inauguration 10 years ago. I am afraid I am not one of them. I am glad, however, to be able to congratulate the Corps Infantry on their many successes during the 18 months I have known them. The majority of prizes, which we offer annually, are at present in your possession. You were good winners of the Corps Athletic Sports and Aquatic Sports and you have taken more than your share of prizes in the Corps Rifle Meetings of the last two years."
"Ten years ago, I understand, you started your career with one Platoon about 30 strong. To-day you have two Companies and a total strength of 8 officers and 194 other ranks. I suggest to you that the conclusion of 10 years' service is a good time for quiet reflection. You should ponder over what membership of the Corps involves, what benefits you derive and what duties you promise to perform. You should ask yourselves: "Are you satisfied that in the past you have done all you could to fulfill your obligations to the Corps?" "Do you consider that your duty to the Corps ends when you have completed the minimum of parades and camps required by the Volunteer Ordinance?" I suggest to you that it only ends when you have made yourselves efficient to perform the tasks which have been allotted to you in the defence of this Colony.
I state a heresy and ask you to ignore the provisions of the Volunteer Ordinance where they state that 15 parades per annum makes an efficient Volunteer and I am going to ask you instead to try and double that number.
The Military Authorities have entrusted to B Company one of the most important tasks in the defence of the Colony — its Anti-Aircraft Defence. The carrying out of this task requires the highest degree of skill and this can only be acquired by constant practice.
"A Company has been entrusted with a task no less important, that involves more than an annual trip to the Peak School and thence to the Gap.
Some of you may think that my expectations are too sanguine and that I am calling on you to perform duties in excess of those you promised to perform when you joined the Corps. Should this be so, you must put it down to my keenness to maintain the efficiency of the Corps and the efficiency of your unit and because I have been here long enough to admire the Volunteer, to appreciate his services and to realise that there is nothing he will not do if the necessity for it is put plainly before him.
Later, the toast of "Our Guests" was proposed by Captain Rodrigues.

The very uncertain weather that prevailed both in Hong Kong and at Fanning made of the Point-to-point meeting at Potts' Bungalow a display of costumes, mackintoshes, and warm coats instead of the brighter and prettier spring clothes one might reasonably hope to see in the first week in April.

Mrs. Ryland had on a big navy blue coat over a woollen frock and was wearing one of those becoming pointed knitted caps, also in navy blue. Mrs. Stanton's suit was of a bluey-green colour, the skirt being in check.

Mrs. Ravenhill's overcoat was of an unusual shade, being of deep pink, with which she wore a brown hat ornamented in front with a smart cockade. Mrs. Kirkby was in a dark grey flannel coat and skirt, over

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

Variety is the spice of life — as some connoisseurs assert . . . at any rate variety is important in one's wardrobe and there is no better and more economical way of achieving it than to include a goodly number of smart blouses. LANE, CRAWFORD'S have some perfectly stunning ones, which will not only bring variety to your wardrobe but what one calls "It." They are of sharkskin, of net, georgette and organdie, plain and fancy, in a host of soft pastel shades. There are jabots, too, for your suits. Variety not only in material, but in colour and pattern.

Warm to-day, cold to-morrow, fog, rain, sunshine all mixed up . . . that is Spring in Hong Kong. The sudden changes of weather must not find you unprotected . . . take the best precaution . . . use NUVEX. It is sold at the GRAND DISPENSARY (corner, China Building, close to Queen's Theatre). NUVEX is an inhalant, a scientific antidote to colds, chills due to sudden changes in weather. Use NUVEX at first signs of cold; its vapours speedily destroy the germs and eliminate the infection. Don't forget the name is NUVEX and the place to get it is the GRAND DISPENSARY.

It is time you tried RIVELLE, and you and you . . . all of you indeed, the RIVELLE habit does good for all smart women. Heaps of new things there this week too . . . lovely evening frocks of the lightest georgettes, nets, organdies . . . and the grandest new net afternoon frocks, something that is very "different." There are prints too, soft and gay, some cottons and many smart new hats. You will have to visit RIVELLE and find out for yourself what I mean by the RIVELLE habit. It is a charming habit too!

Open sesame! Those were magic words to open the cave of treasures; But you don't need any magic words to enter Hong Kong's treasure shop — the JADE TREE! The magic is served to you in the shape of exquisite lacquer wares, jewellery embroidery, teakwood furniture, glassware all wrought by the hands of China's master craftsmen, and personally selected for you by Mrs. Wood, the well known authority on Oriental art objects.

Baby's kicking away in his play-pen perfectly happy and contented — and I'll say he's lively! And that's all because I keep him safe from all the little worries that usually crop up at teething time, keep him safe from griping, from indigestion, from colic, from vomiting, and all the crowd of digestive troubles so common to babyhood. And how do I do all that? Just simply by keeping a bottle of WATSON'S BABY WATER on hand and using it as a cure and a preventive — its the perfect aid. And if you, too, are a young mother you'll be needing it as much as I. What miracles it works. And only 25 cents a bottle.

The place of places for any book lover in Hong Kong is BREWER'S BOOKSHOP . . . there you will find something, too, to suit your friend, be he a rich man, a poor man, civil servant, doctor, lawyer or Indian Chief . . . and for the friends who don't fit into categories . . . something that will make the gift of gifts. For BREWER'S BOOKSHOP gets all the new books worth reading . . . books for highbrow and books for the lowbrow. A tremendous selection of magazines and periodicals too — at the lowest prices in town.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

Take a look at their new Spring coats, cross your heart and say whether anywhere else you can see such engaging styles and lovely materials. Good people are in good company, so it is natural that at MAIZEE'S you'll find Helena Rubinstein's famous beauty aids.

The Zenith 1937 Radio is "the" one — no doubt about that. The newest in the world . . . but made by the radio's oldest manufacturer. It is almost impossible to find a finer radio than a Zenith . . . visit the INTERNATIONAL RADIO, SALES AND SERVICE, 27 Hankow Road, Kowloon, and find out about it. You may start with a small Zenith and pave the way for an All Wave World-wide Automatic Radio-Gram. But whatever it is, let your slogan be: "A Zenith in the home." There's no end to the pleasure you'll have, for its a radio famous for its selectivity, and tone quality. Cash, or terms arranged to suit.

Not just any hats this summer . . . there is one place to go in town where they're able to suit you perfectly . . . MAYO'S SHOPPE. They have such a variety of styles, that it will not be difficult to find the clever hat, the right hat, the perfect hat for madame. The appointment of a Trust Corporation, rather than an individual, as Executor and/or Trustee of an Infant's Legacy secures many important advantages, not the least of which are absolute continuity of management, security and secrecy. The Eight Magic Horses of King Mu

Phyllis Juby

Tells The Story Behind The Equestrian Group So Frequently Purchased By Tourists And Lovers of Things Chinese Without Knowledge of The History, or Fantasy, Which Roused The Artist In The Builder In Clay.

TOURISTS, or the people of Hong Kong often make the purchase of a group of coloured clay horses shown in eight different postures and commonly called "The Eight Horses," but if the make enquiries as to the "story" of the animals, they seldom have their curiosity satisfied.

These charming, lively little figures are no less than the representation of the eight magic horses of King Mu, the fifth sovereign of the Chou dynasty, whose reign is famous for his adventurous journeys. The Bamboo Annals relate that in his seventeenth year, he headed an expedition to the Mount K'wen Lun and visited Si Wang Mu, the Queen of the Genii. No wonder the fairy maiden with her escort of graceful nymphs entertained her imperial visitor when she saw him riding a chariot drawn by horses with names of legend:

Wings Flapping.
Straight to the Clouds.
Above Earth.
Shadow Rising.
Mounting the Mist.
Red Blaze.
Leaping over the Sun.
Clasped Wings.

Drank The Yellow River

The horses, reputed to have been bred in T'ao Lin, a forest born from the stick of K'wa Fu, the same who tragically fought the sun. "He knew not how to control his strength," says the Shan Hoi King. "He chased the Sun, met it in the Western Valley and there, dying of thirst, drank the Yellow River and the River Wei. It was not enough. He died in agony wishing for more."

In their origin, the written character, Ma, for horse and the character, Niu, for bird were alike. The Sun travels in a chariot during the day and has for its emblem a bird—horses and birds live nearby. Pegasus, the winged horse might have come from China.

A bird or a steed, the horse was also a dragon, the Lung Ma, the mythical animal represented with the head of a dragon on the body of a horse, the neck of a serpent, bearing on its back the Pak Wa, which contained the Yang and the Yin, surrounded by the Eight Trigrams. The latter was interpreted by the legendary Fu Hsi and formed the basis of a philosophy which has for centuries been a dominant influence in the Yellow Kingdom.

Ch'ang K'uo's Magic Steed

Among the Immortals who have become associated with the horse is Ch'ang K'uo. He is said to have spent most of his time wandering about the country on a magic horse of his own creation. This remarkable steed, when not in service, was kept in a gourd which the Immortal carried on a staff, but, when needed, Ch'ang K'uo would vivify it and increase it to the necessary size by spraying it with water from his mouth. The accommodating creature required no food and could travel continuously for unlimited distances.

The first use of the horse was in connection with the chariot for both civil and military purposes. According to the Book of Rites, six drew the Imperial chariot, three a Lord's, two an official's, and one a citizen's. The horse added elegance to war.

"Mark ye the steed swift and tireless, see the dust spurred by his hoofs, rising in clouds;

Now he swims the river, anon climbs the hill, rending the purple mist asunder;

Scornful he breaks the rein, shakes from his head the jeweled bridle;

He is a fiery dragon descending from the highest heaven."

Liu Pei And The Torrent

In Chinese literature the leap over the torrent of Liu Pei's horse is used in many poems as a literary allusion. Liu Pei, one of the heroes of the Romance of the Three Kingdoms, was attracted to a place where his enemies plotted his death. Invited to a feast, he rode to the residence on a horse of ill-omen and when he arrived, the steed was led into an enclosure and tethered there. Soon the guests arrived. Tsai Mao, the traitor, perfected the final arrangements, placing his men so as to surround the place like a ring of iron. All were ready and awaiting the signal. At the third course, I Chi, the good man, took a goblet of wine in his hands and approached Liu Pei, at the same time giving him an understanding look. Then, in a low voice, he said: "Make an excuse to get away." Liu Pei understood and rose as if stiff with long sitting and went outside. There he found I Chi who told him of the plot: Liu Pei, losing no time, got hold of the horse of ill-omen and took a leap to the Western Gate. Before he had gone far, there rolled before him a great river barring the way. He turned his horse and rode back. Then, not far off, he saw a cloud of dust and knew that his enemies were therein. He turned again and plunged into the stream. The good steed reared up out of the water and with one tremendous leap was on the western bank.

Sound Of Clashing Steel

Su Tung Po, the poet, wrote a poem on this leap over the T'ian torrent:

"His steed's hoofs churn the swollen stream;
What reck he that the waves run high?
He hears the sound of clashing steel

Of thundering squadrons coming nigh,
And upward from the foaming waves
I saw two fearless beings soar.
One was a destined western king,

And him another dragon bore.
These dragons twain. Oh! Where are they?
Yes where?"

Ming Huang, the Bright Emperor of the T'ang dynasty, was fond of horses. In his stable the animals were divided into two groups: the dragon group and the proud group. Over 400 of these steeds were schooled to perform all manner of tricks, executing them in time to the music. The horses were dressed: they were covered with silk nets and the meshes of these nets took the shape of lovely flowers. Golden bells hung from the martingales, white jade and large pearls were braided into the flowing manes.

Posturing Dances

Thus dressed, the horses, ridden by skilful horsemen, performed. When the strains of the air, "The Overturned Platter" rang out the creatures, curveting in time to the music, heads, tails and feet moving in perfect rhythm, went forward, mounted tiers of wooden steps, performing "Posturing dances," holding in their teeth cups full of wine of longevity, or executed high jumps over stands three tiers high. Or again, a horse took his place in the centre of an immense wooden tub which strong men lifted to their shoulders while the horse swayed to the beat of the musical instruments.

Purity, Nobility, Wisdom

The horse was also used in medicine. We see in a Chinese medical book: "The pure white ones are best for medicine. The eye reflects the full image of the man. If he eats rice his feet will become heavy, if his teeth are rubbed with dead silkworms or black plums he will not eat, nor if the skin of a rat or a wolf be hung in his manger; if a monkey be kept in the stable, he will not fall sick.... The horse's liver is said to be poisonous. The heart, when dried, powdered and taken with wine is a cure for forgetfulness. Above the knees, the horse has night eyes which enable him to go in the night, they are useful for toothache. If a man be restless and hysterical, when he wishes to sleep, let a horse's hoof be hung in his house."

In China, the horse has been invested with qualities of purity, nobility and wisdom; the high regard in which it was held is evident from the relation which it bore to the competitive literary examinations. For the men of letters who secretly coached candidates were called "horses," the apartments where the tutoring was done, "horse-sheds," while the students themselves were said to be "riding the horses."

EXETER TRIAL

History Of A Silver Medal

In the arduous Exeter Trial Award List appears the name of H. W. Blaw, of Fitchley.

Mr. Blaw entered a Sports car in the trial but unfortunately some little time before the trial difficulty was experienced with the car.

At Mrs. Blaw's garage, there was an old 24 HP 4-cylinder Ford which had been re-bored until the cubic capacity had altered to 2,888 c.c., it had run 200,000 miles, and it was this car Mr. Blaw used as a substitute.

It is interesting to note that in the list of awards there appears: Mr. H. W. Blaw, No. 6, Silver Medal.

THIS WEEK

The seemingly inevitable conflict of the practical with the ideal again disposed summarily of beliefs in the improvement of the international situation. America's intervention, indirect but none the less influential, with a call to political adjustments through economic co-operation, evoked an encouraging response. Germany invested Mr. Cordell Hull's speech with real importance and so seriously did gamblers in the metal markets regard the trend towards peace that hasty abandonment of their positions caused a sharp slump in prices. Signor Mussolini brought Europe back to earth—and reassured the speculators—by countenancing virulent press attacks on Britain, France and the Soviet which looked alarmingly like preparation for wrecking the non-intervention agreement concerning the Spanish civil war and rescuing General Franco from his present plight.

That the Fascist cause in Spain has suffered severely, there is no longer any doubt. Fresh onslaughts have been made by the insurgent leader, General Mola, in an attempt to take Bilbao, and the operations, supported by overwhelming mastery in the air, met with considerable success. Few who have studied the course of events in sadly stricken Spain, however, regard General Mola's offensive as a vital factor in the general outlook. Where the issues are really being fought out with a bitter fury, in what the militarists would call the decisive theatre, the insurgents appear to be a spent force. Considered opinion is that without large reinforcements from Italy or Germany, General Franco is destined to defeat. The evil is that a fatal step may be taken, on Italian initiative.

Earlier in the week, President Roosevelt's thesis of world peace through economic pacts had captured the popular imagination. There was talk of diversion of armaments funds into commercial channels and of the creation of an international fund for financing trade intercourse. It almost staggers the imagination to speculate upon the possibilities; to consider what might be achieved if Britain were to spend £1,500,000,000 in five years on projects specifically directed towards the promotion of world peace; and other countries contributed to an international pool proportionately. Until Italy comes along and talks provocatively of British need for recognition of the termination of her historical naval supremacy in the Mediterranean.

Even brighter features of the week's news have their origin in the world's warlike manifestations. At the Indo-China Steam Navigation Company meeting, announcement was made that three new ships, to be built in Hong Kong, had been ordered, that freight rates were rising in every direction, that a loss on working in 1936 had been converted into a substantial profit. It all affords confirmation, should it be needed, that trade prospects in the Colony are more encouraging than they have been for many years. And the inclination is to purr with pleasure, unless we trace things back a little further and ponder the thought that much of the newfound prosperity is based upon potential human misery and wretchedness, death and destruction, civilisation gone crazy elsewhere.

In India, Britain finds herself faced with two serious problems, tribal restlessness on the North-West Frontier and constitutional difficulties in the provinces. The R.A.F. commenced systematic bombing raids upon an area known to shelter trouble-makers, razing villages and pursuing a relentless war of demoralisation. It was to preserve liberty of action of this kind in this particular sphere that the British Government some years ago declined to subscribe to and wrecked sound hopes of a convention which was designed to prohibit bombing from the air in areas like Madrid, Valencia, Malaga and, perhaps, one day, London. Somehow, consideration of whether such an international convention would have been adhered to faithfully seems a little irrelevant.

Lord Zetland set out the case against the all-India Congress in unmistakably clear terms. Whether it will relieve the situation caused by the refusal of provincial legislatures majorities to form ministries is quite another matter. The Mahatma Gandhi has so frequently exposed his remarkable capacity for elevating himself beyond the reach of logic that no confidence can be placed in expectations of a more sensible approach on this occasion. A responsible Congress ministry in any province could readily make the constitutional safeguards a mere formality. Were there serious intention to work earnestly for the general welfare, there would be nothing in the safeguards for Congress to cavil at.

One result of China's effort to balance her budget and thereby satisfy Sir Frederick Leith-Ross's prerequisites of a sound currency, has been a substantial increase in revenue taxes, including tobacco. Cigarette prices have risen startlingly in Shanghai and enthusiasts in protest have declared their intention of reducing consumption to mark disapproval. A number of small cigarette factories have closed down, a more emphatic though equally futile gesture. Reasoned opinion is that if additional taxation cannot be avoided, tobacco can stand it better than most things. Even at present rates, the cost of fragrant weed in China is still but half that of London.

The safe arrival at Croydon of the "Divine Wind" on completing an epoch-marking flight from Tokyo was enthusiastically applauded throughout the Far East. Messrs. Inuma and Tsukahashi are the first Japanese airmen to achieve world-wide distinction in long-distance flying and they began by setting every other Far Eastern flying record at naught. The only comparable achievement was the Scott dash to Australia in the Melbourne Race, with a large monetary prize as its reward. Without such an incentive, Inuma flew from Tokyo to London in 94 hours 18 minutes, a remarkable feat, heightened by the fact that the "Divine Wind" was Japanese-built throughout.

The Last Of Kipling

THERE ought to be a law empowering the Censor to forbid the publication of books by dead authors that are likely to injure his reputation. Authors that are careful of their workmanship often leave a great deal of manuscript behind them in the form either of work abandoned because at some point the writer felt that he had lost the inspiration that prompted the beginning, or memoranda of incidents that he did not wish to forget, but never worked up into literary form. Rudyard Kipling's "Something of Myself" is an instance of the latter class of material. Casual reminiscences may be of great value to an author's admirers when they reveal aspects of his personality which he has suppressed or inadequately revealed, but in such cases we usually find that the value lies in showing a general philosophy of life and how it came to be formed. If there is no such philosophy—if the record is merely of details that have interested the author personally, the result is that he takes a lower place in our estimation, because we conclude that we now know all there is to be known about him, and he can no longer be given the benefit of the doubt. "Something of Myself" is a disappointment. We get a higher idea of the man from the best of his works. Kipling was a man who accepted the world as he found it and set to work to describe it with magnificent artistry. He was disinclined to sit down and think about it in general terms.

A Drastic Censorship

WOULD the Censor ever have the necessary taste and judgment? There are some cases in which we shall never know whether we have lost much or little. Sir Richard Burton, who is at present arousing new interest because this very frank generation has discovered that age to earn his own living. He right in the middle of the Victorian period there was a man who was much franker than any of them, suffered from a very drastic censorship by his wife, to whom he left his papers as his executor. She was a fine old lady of strong character, devoted to her husband and his reputation. The papers turned out to be a collection of quaint data about Eastern men and women such as are not acceptable—or supposed to be—in a club smoking room. She had disapproved of the candour of the famous notes to the great edition of the "Arabian Nights," and resolved that his reputation should not be injured by anything of the same sort in even greater detail. So the whole lot were burned, but with no effect whatever in the way of causing the dead husband to be considered an innocent Sir Galahad. On the other hand, Anyot's reputation entirely rests on the posthumous publication of his diary, for he never published anything in his lifetime. Arnold Bennett had put the whole of himself into his novels, and the publication of two fat volumes of extracts from his diaries, which he wrote up every day, leaves only the impression of a very self-centred man, anxious to make his way in the world, and careless of any thought or study that had no commercial value. J. H. Thomas's "My Story" reveals only a successful careerist, but the papers of Sir Edward Grey, show us a man who was greater than even his great career. Posthumous publication is a risky business, but we can conclude that none but a great man can really stand it, and that in the case of a great man his fame will be increased.

Kipling And India

TO a great extent Kipling's style and methods were shaped by the fact that he was thrown into journalism at a very early age to earn his own living. He aimed at compression, and definiteness. To balance this must be placed the tendency to look at life from the point of view of a reporter, and this again was checked by his determination to do his job as well as he could, and to study the best models. Probably "Kim" and "The Jungle Book" will live longest, but the India that he loved was the old India, before there was any talk of self-government. His personal opinion was that all political discussion was a mere form of self-seeking, and that any man worthy of respect simply tried to get a job and then proceeded to get on with it. It is painful to think of what he would have said of the India of Gandhi and Jawaharlal Nehru. That Britain should offer Ministerial billets to politicians who then refuse to take office except on their own terms would have seemed like turning the world upside down. He was firmly convinced that Campbell-Bannerman, when he gave self-government to the Transvaal had no motive but to retain his official salary, regardless of the fact that he was not only a very rich but a rather lazy man.

Recessional

A man's verse seems to be subject to bigger fluctuations of esteem than his prose. "Barrack Room Ballads" have dated because war itself has changed. When they first were collected out of the newspaper files they came like a breath of fresh air amid too heavy conventionalities. One of the esteemed critics of the rising generation says that even the "Recessional" is "empty doggerel." There can be no doubt that it exactly expressed the feeling of the best men of that day, and will never grow old to those who read it when it was fresh.

Health Through Physical Fitness

A Weekly Common-Sense Talk

BY L. KNIGE,

Director, Hydro-Therapeutic Institution, Hong Kong.

This Week I Discuss: How to have Slender

Hips And Thighs.

WHEN you exercise, the muscular action causes the blood stream to take up stored fat and utilise it as a source of energy. The wastage from this fat is eliminated, through the natural organs, which carry off body wastes, principally through the pores of the skin in the form of perspiration.

The tissues of a stout person are saturated with fat. The tissues will throw off this fat if the body machines require more energy, as in active exercise. So the generating of heat by the body in exercise and the demand for unusual energy production on the part of the muscles causes the fat to pass from the "stored up" to the "used up" state. It is no longer fat, but waste matter, and is excreted through perspiration and so on.

The effect of exercise is to destroy tissue and to burn up fat. The human body is covered with layers of tissue. The body in extremely stout people is covered with a layer of fat under the skin. This fat is nature's protection against cold. You will have noticed, for instance, in cold weather or after swimming in cold water, that your skin feels cold, is cold. Yet under the skin the tissues remain warm. This is largely due to the fatty layer under the skin, which acts as an insulator against cold. The tissues are also streaked with layers of fat, as you will have noticed in buying beef at the Dairy Farm.

When you exercise this fat furnishes the energy and heat to keep the muscles flexible and resilient. It is "consumed" by the tissues in developing heat and energy. When you exercise the muscles contract and expand, "breaking up" the cells. The fat is used up and passes away in perspiration, or is absorbed into the blood stream and carried off through the organs.

An athlete will work off several pounds in a hard test of speed and endurance. It is not at all unusual for a man in perfect physical condition, with apparently no surplus weight, to work off five to ten pounds in a comparatively short period of time.

After rigorous exercising you will notice a feeling of physical well-being all over your body, unless you have overdone it and feel tired — that you should avoid. No exercise will do you any good however, unless there is enough muscle action to create a real demand for energy in the tissue. All exercises should be taken with this thought in mind. When you bend, for instance, don't "throw" your body back and forth. That won't help a bit. The right way to do it, is as if you were trying to pull a weight down. Put a tension on your muscles, all of them, as you bend your body from the waist and try to touch your toes with the tips of your fingers. Exert this tension all over your body, from the tips of your fingers, through your arms, your shoulders, your abdomen, your thighs and calves, down to your feet. You must be actually "pulling" at your muscles, as it were, in flexing your body. Then the tension and strain put on the muscles, by doing the work of overcoming resistance, will require energy in the form of fat, resulting in weight reduction. This holds true of all exercises. If this tension, this muscular strain, does not exist, then you are not exercising properly and you are just wasting so much time. You are not expanding the required energy.

Here I am chiefly concerned with those who want to keep fit and do not have any active form of outdoor sport and it is surprising the number there are in this Colony, which so abundantly provides opportunities for physical activity. The character and scope of the exercise you undertake should be governed by your physique and condition, but whatever you do — do it in the open air — before an open window, on a screened verandah, or outdoors. Breathe deeply and regularly. It is a good idea to start exercising with deep breathing which is extremely beneficial. Here is how to do it properly.

Place your hands on your hips, throw out your chest, hold your chin up and fill your lungs with air. Hold your breath a few seconds to allow the lungs to take up the oxygen in the unaccustomed quantities, then expel the breath and take another good lungful. Repeat this several times. Your body will begin to respond. You will feel the warmth of an increased circulation. The feeling of physical exhilaration will spread over you.

From my work at the Institute I know that when most people become concerned about their weight, it is generally due to the fat beginning to pile up at particular points. "Double chins," "Rubber Tyres" and "Typists' Hips" are all too familiar expressions to most people — to help this particular class I give a series of simple exercises which will definitely help to bring back the form divine.

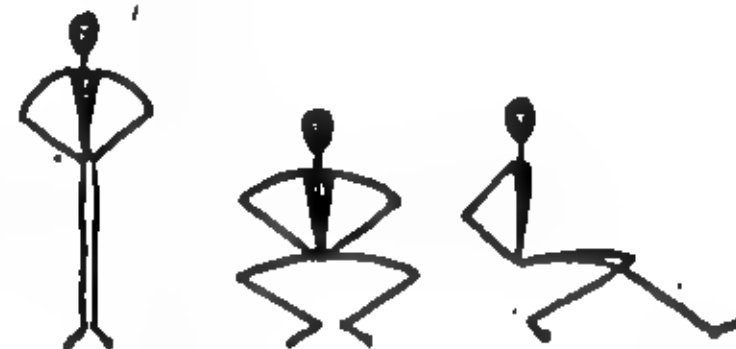

For Slender Hips And Thighs

Exercise No. 1

Stand erect, your hands on hips. Bend knees until body assumes a squatting position. Repeat five times.

Exercise No. 2

Assume squatting position as in Exercise No. 1, keeping knees bent, march forward, taking ten steps.

Exercise No. 3

From squatting position, bend over and touch the floor with the tips of your fingers. While keeping fingers on the floor, straighten knees.

Exercise No. 4

Lie on left side on the floor. Raise right leg sideward and upward as high as you can. Repeat five times, then lay on your right side and do the same with your left leg.

Exercise No. 5

Stand erect. Hold your right arm until it is even with shoulder and parallel to the floor. Swing your right leg upward and forward until it touches the fingers of outstretched hand. Ten times. Do the same exercise with left arm and leg.

Next week "Taking off weight in Spots" and "A word on Waistlines."

Mainly about WOMEN

Most Modern Home

FROM America, where the servant problem has always been acute and where women wish to have their time free to pursue their own work and interests, there come most of our labour-saving devices, and now, in "The America," I read about the world's most modern house. Not a house full of gadgets, but one where there is a sound and honest reason for everything.

The house is not in New York or Hollywood, reputed fountainheads of newfangled ideas, but in Des Moines, Iowa, the country where the tall corn grows. It was built by Earl Butler. And now Mr. and Mrs. Butler and their daughter are settled there, in such unique comfort that it all seems to be something created by Aladdin and his magic lamp.

It is a concrete house, reinforced with steel, so it ought to last as long as the Pyramids. It contains every electrical device that is practical and useful—none that is just in the experimental stage. Every room is lighted through masses of windows by day and by scientifically planned lighting at night. From every room is a beautiful view. Off most are terraces or balconies. A turn of a switch summons any climate, with the air cleaned and humidified.

But the innovation that makes it a long jump ahead of any other modern houses is the ramp, which takes the place of the main stairway. It is a wide and gently rising incline that winds back and forth, with turns banked, up through the centre of the house like a flattened corkscrew. If you had to climb steps from the recreation-room on the ground floor to the sunroom on the top you would be gasping at the finish. The trip on the ramp is a romp.

It is a house that will not have to be painted or shingled. The ceilings and walls are not likely to crack. Windows and doors won't stick. There are no gutters to clean or repair. The roofs, flat, become useful porches.

When a member of the family drives up to the house, through the court, which is large enough to park 50 cars, before him are the doors of a 3-car garage, each with a window to show which stalls are occupied. If visitors push a bell at any one of the five entrances, it will buzz in the kitchen. Without putting down the potatoes which she may be peeling, a servant can say, "Who is it, please?" and her voice will pop out of a two-way speaker beside the door. When the visitor has told his business, the servant, through one of the house telephones that reach nearly every room and terrace, sends a message to one of the family. If the answer is "Come in please," the servant presses a button, the door unlocks, the visitor enters! What a saving in time and foot steps!

The lighting attracts me most of all: the lights are placed for beauty as well as utility. Much is indirect, many banks are set into the walls behind diffusing glass, and nowhere in the house can be seen a bare electric-light bulb. The illumination strikes things that are being used, avoiding the eyes. For reading there are lights close to your book. In the kitchen, hidden lights shine directly upon the hands of the cook as she prepares the salad or cuts the meat. In the dressing-rooms, mirrors are bordered with glowing tubes. On the outdoor steps and terraces, shaded lights show you where to step.

Mrs. Butler wanted a nice colonial house with green shutters, and when her husband mentioned modern architecture she declared she didn't like it. "But now," says Mr. Butler, "she wouldn't swap this one for six dozen colonial houses."

Of course not! For modernism in housing is not, as many seem to think, housing set to jazz music. It is a plan to make your life more comfortable—to obtain in a home, durability, beauty, utility, and economy. When you bought your first vacuum cleaner and electric toaster you joined the modern movement.

And as these "improved" modern houses become more common, I guess at their tea-parties the women won't be talking about their servant problems, but about the electrician.

A MOMENT IN THE SEA

Death comes soon when there is no oxygen, but you die a thousand times in your mind

ONE isn't supposed to think here, he thought as he slid down through the softness of the dim Atlantic, but I'll be crucified if I can help it.

He reached ninety feet. Olson, at the other end, brought him up with a suddenness that rammed an "Ugh!" through his teeth. He turned the air valve to balance pressure. The slipstream of bubbles, gurgling and swirling out of the helmet, roared in his ears. After a while his feet, swollen in leaden weights, touched the soft bottom, sending a cloud of fine silt billowing about him so that visibility was impossible.

"On the bottom!" he signaled Olson. The slack on his air line spread slowly behind him in a descending curve as he leaned forward and clumsily penetrated the sea wall.

When he switched on his lamp the light scissored out a wide swath through the blackness and limned the dark green water so that the fine silt particles gleamed like pin heads in the sun.

Jailed as tightly as in a straight-jacket, he had taught himself to fight panic. He thought a great deal in spite of himself; wanted to shout and swear, or something. Sometimes he even talked to the fish. Now he wondered only what the men were doing above him. Olson wore the ear-phones and a dirty brown sweater that had almost shed itself through salt corrosion. Jameson kept an eye on the air-compressor.

Funny how he felt this trip down—like a green diver on his first trip to the bottom. The drag of his heavy shoes persisted in raising skeins of finely parceled silt that clung tenaciously about him.

He thought again of the diving ship. Olson would be at the stern, idly surveying the north, his eyes thin slits, clinked at the corners, his face immobile, unfathomable and stolid. After a while he would jab his teeth-bruised pipe back into his leathern jaws. Jameson, he of the yellow-tinged skin, blond hair and blue eyes, would be whittling the legs of a toy. When he bunked up for the night and took off his wooden leg, he turned red if you looked at the stump too long.

Up there, the sun would be boiling in the sky like the flames of a gas-burner, and small choppy waves would glow like

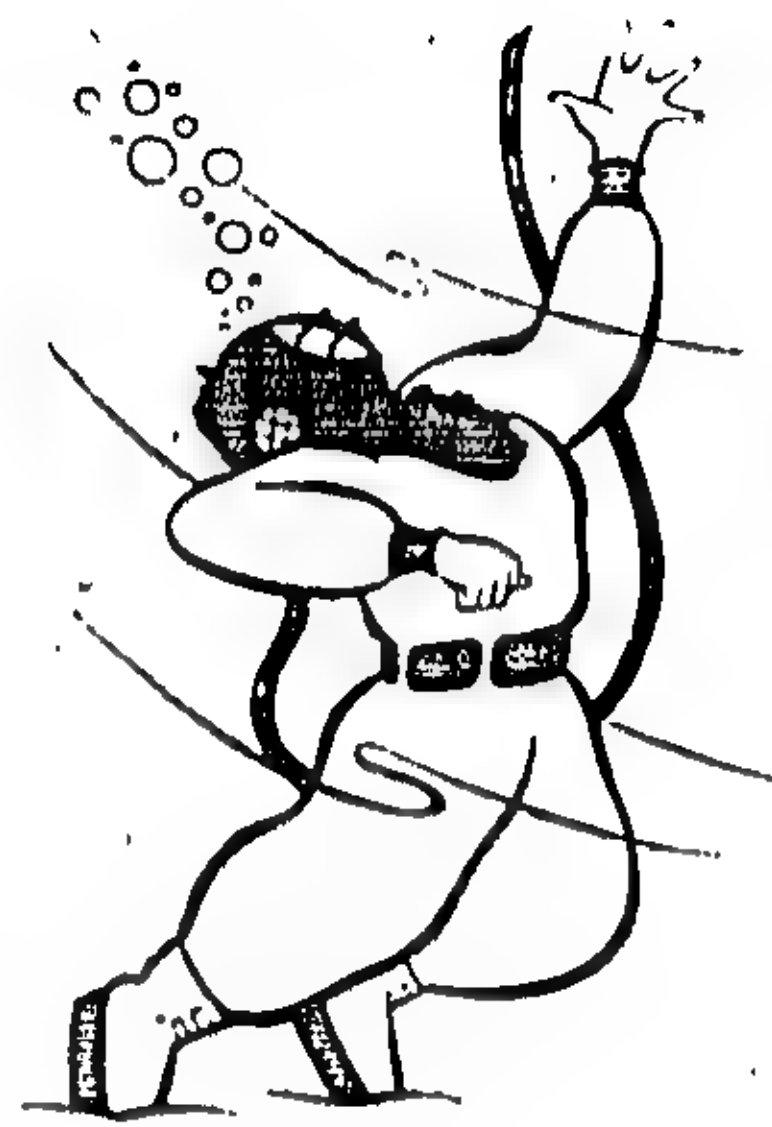

"Will that damn thing run itself?" he would ask, kicking his foot in the direction of the air-compressor.

"Ya," Olson would reply. "Only she can apt to stop sometime. She be not a new one, Captn."

"We'll take a chance, Olson, for a minute. You come below. You, too, Jameson. I'm short-handed."

Olson would remove the phones. As he laid them on the deckboards they would click. A slight click like ticked finger nails.

The diver's hands tightened nervously as he thought he heard the click. Murder, that's what it was! The air-compressor would stop—wooden doll.

"Captain's coming."

Jameson folded up his jack-knife, and both of them wiped their hands on their dungareed thighs and saluted. They waited patiently. The Captain sauntered closer. A cold wind sprang out of the north and tousled Jameson's hair. The Captain paused.

"How long he been down, Olson?"

"Half-hour, maybe twenty-five minits."

"Will that damn thing run itself?" he asked, kicking his foot in the direction of the whirling pump.

"Ya," Olson replied. "Only she can apt to stop sometime. She be not a new one, Captn." He looked uneasy.

"We'll take a chance, Olson, for a minute. You come below with me. You, too, Jameson. I'm short-handed."

Olson and Jameson glanced at each other.

"Are ye comin'?" roared the Captain, his face purpling and spitting. "What in hell is this broken mirrors. The Captain would be below deck, probably meandering the gold salvaging apparatus.

A long narrow fish with yellow blotches near the tail appeared and paused to gaze with stupid eyes at the thing within the iron ball. A quick flip of the valve and it scurried off, scared stiff by the flow of bubbles hissing behind it. He almost smiled at the way the fish slid off at the least indication of danger.

The Captain would stroll on deck about this time and look about.

"How long he been down, Olson?"

"Half-hour, maybe twenty-five minits, Captn."

but his mind wouldn't—oh, God!—there would be that moment when the air stopped coming through, and his lungs wheezed for oxygen. Christ! As the air went stale, the weight of the ocean would hug him in a monstrous embrace, squeeze him flatter than a tin can under a steam-roller. They would pull him up dead—dead as a herring floating in the water, white belly up—pour him on deck, a shapeless, formless mass of exploded flesh, burst veins, cracked bone and popped eyes. Olson would look at him, then turn his face aside to retch.

"Olson!" he screamed through his transmitter. "Olson!" His throat gagged in sheer terror. "Yah?" came the slow, bland answer.

He suddenly felt exceedingly foolish. "Christ!" he shuddered. He could feel the salt sweat beads chilling his face in the constant flow of air, rushing air, beautiful air, and he felt wildly relieved. "God!" he muttered, feeling his tense muscles and thudding pulse relaxing. He laughed nervously with relief.

"How long I been down?" he shouted, pressing his lips against the cold transmitter.

"Yust fifteen minits." He strained his ears to hear. The constant flow of air through his helmet made hearing difficult. But he would rather have the air than hear well, he grimly thought.

His legs still quivered from the strain of the past twenty seconds. He wouldn't have minded quitting, but his pride was stronger than his fear. Slightly to his left he vaguely glimpsed a dark hulk that might be what he was looking for, and as a small procession of weak-fish swam with him, he slowly advanced, like a stuffed coffin dragged by sinny pallbearers.

The exhaust bubbles trailed up in clicking, sucking silver balls. His air line stretched and lingered behind him, an elongated intestine.

On deck Swen Olson glanced aft and nudged Jameson, who was smoothing down a leg on a —insubordination?" He choked on the last word. "Come below!"

They wiped their fingers again and obediently pulled their fingers in a grave salute. "Aye, aye, Captain."

Olson removed the phones from his head and put them down slowly. They clicked ever so slightly as they touched the deckboards and turned up like two accusing eyes. Olson glanced anxiously at the pump, then he, Jameson and the Captain, went below.

The pump ran giddily, its large and dirty wheel flashing and sinking, flashing and sinking in monotonous consistency. Then it coughed faintly once, twice, and faltered.

The sun was brighter than before. It boiled in the blue sky like the flames of a gas-burner, and the small choppy waves glowed like broken mirrors.

Olson and Jameson reappeared on deck. Olson saw the pump first.

"Salana perkol!" he yelled. "She ban stop!" He threw his hands forward in command. "Quick—start her goin'—hoory—hoory up!"

The phones lay on the deck so that the two sections seemed to be talking to each other. Despair came oozing invisibly and frantically out of the instrument and coiled helplessly about like heat waves. Soon the bubbles climbing into the air near the boat diminished then stopped. A small vicious wave swept over the spot where the last bubble floated and cracked it between its teeth.

Olson clutched the phone and yelled into the transmitter: "Hallo—hallo—hallo—hallo!"

The Captain joined them. He snatched the instrument out of Olson's sweating hands and said commandingly: "Hello—hello—hello—hello!"

They looked for bubbles, now that the infernal machine had started its whirling whine again. The three looked for bubbles, crouched on their knees like intent, hard-playing crap shooters, and stared helplessly down towards the mess below.

Then they began pulling up on the line.

FILM.

THE film-going minority who like to see something that gives a reasonable excuse for subsequent discussion, and who are said by the experts to amount only to ten per cent. of the audience, are not so exacting in their demands as to exclude any good fun or spectacle so long as something comes along once in a way that gives them their sort of entertainment. We happen just now to be rather fortunate, though far from satisfied. The fact is that if a film challenges criticism by having a definite purpose, it is really a compliment that it should be criticised. "The Shape of Things to Come" left us wondering whether the result of hyper-civilisation must necessarily be that people should lose all sense of moderation in building places that had only the inspiration of being ten times as high as the "Empire State Building" in New York, and should then go on not merely to cry for the moon but to get themselves shot out to it. There seemed no advance in imagination over Jules Verne, and it is no conquest of the conditions of life in this world of ours to get transported to another where the conditions are apparently not so good.

Moderation

As a counterblast, or alternative, we have had "The Lost Horizon," which is built up on the conception of moderation as the secret of the Utopia we should all like to find somewhere. The fact that all the continents have been thoroughly explored, with the possible exception of the centre of South America is neither here nor there. We are reconciled to the conviction that Utopia will have to be found in the places with which we are familiar,—the question that this film poses for us is: Should we find it in Hong Kong if everybody were only sufficiently moderate? At once we hit on the snag that moderation is in itself a dull virtue, however useful. Unless the producer can show us that moderation can be fascinating he has not made good. The old priest-philosopher, — a part admirably acted, — has succeeded through faith in achieving resignation, which is a very different thing. The benevolent Chang, who acts as guide and host to the travellers, learned his wisdom elsewhere, and is rather a monk of familiar type than an independent philosopher. The girl who falls in love with "George" is willing to brave death to get out of the valley of Shan Gai La, because her recollection of early childhood tells her that the outside world is much more exciting. The palaeontologist and the plumber are content to remain because they can carry on with the occupations they are accustomed to, not because they have found anything new. But the most disappointing thought is that the people of the village, who surely after being born and brought up in an atmosphere of moderation might be expected to show some new kind of temperament, seem to live in a prolonged picnic on Hampstead Heath, which 'Arry and 'Arriet are quite satisfied to confine to the August Bank Holiday. No. The producer has not satisfied us that he has really thought out his problem, or that Moderation is the Golden Key.

Green Pastures

THE producer of "Green Pastures" seeks his Utopia by a different path. To begin with, he takes some actual human beings as his basis, and the "Negro Spirituals" as his evidence. That in itself is one of those advantageous limitations that help the artist by keeping his feet on solid ground. He limits himself in another way when he cuts out everything of which a negro could have no conception because he has not seen it. There is a big lesson there for us all,—that ignorant or simple people cannot fail to attach to words a meaning which is intelligible to themselves through their own experience. How many abstract theories and enthusiasms have caused sad martyrdoms because the martyr has forgotten that he is talking of things on a far horizon to people whose horizon is narrow? We are introduced to a Heaven where the summit of happiness is a plentiful and prolonged "fish-fry", and from the heights of our civilised sophistication we smile. At so inadequate an ideal. But is not the world kept in unrest because mankind in general at the moment is determined to have a prolonged and plentiful fish-fry, and also determined that his neighbour shall have a taste for the same sort of fish?

Realistic Presentation

THE author and producer of this film is to be congratulated on carrying out his conception in a logical way. He has been criticised for his consistency by people who would have had him introduce the mysterious voice from above giving commandments to mankind which has been the resort of less courageous producers. The fact is that his method is really by far the more reverent in confining himself to the solid human anthropomorphism that his premises require. "The Lord" is a kind old local preacher who is troubled and wearied by the sins of "those humans," and inclined to give them up as a bad job. He rather agrees with Gabriel when he suggests that man is a poor bit of work. He is willing to convince Moses by a show of power. Later on he calls to repentance by his prophets. He cannot resist the power of Faith, which compels him to listen even when he has grown weary of rebellious man. In the end comes the realisation that mercy springs from suffering, and that he too must suffer to learn how to be merciful. It is the merit of this film that through the ludicrously inadequate imaginations of very simple people big ideas show through like glints of sunshine through driving mist.

Commentator.

These stars twinkled the brightest in the cinema firmament in 1936. They were selected by the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences as the actors and actresses who gave the most outstanding performances last year. The group includes Carole Lombard, picked for her work in "My Man Godfrey"; Lulu Rainer, "The Great Ziegfeld"; Irene Dunne, "Theodora Goes Wild"; Norma Shearer, "Romeo and Juliet"; Gladys George, "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie"; Paul Muni, "The Story of Louis Pasteur"; Spencer Tracy, "San Francisco"; William Powell, "My Man Godfrey"; Walter Huston, "Dodsworth", and Gary Cooper for "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town."

Life is a pretty pleasant affair for newly arrived Panacea Pan, the baby chimpanzee, at the John Hopkins Medical School, Baltimore. She is to have a nursery all her own and will be raised as a human baby in order to allow doctors to study better the theory of the "missing link."

Arline Judge, the pretty film star, is here shown in the centre of an eager group of Reno, Nevada, autograph seekers. Arline arrived at the divorce capital, where it is reported she will establish a permanent residence.

BECAUSE Tavern De Luxe Candles are made of the purest mineral wax obtainable, they are hot weather candles, too—positively will not bend. As the outside layers of wax are extremely hard, and the wick is of specially prepared absorbent material, there is no dripping—no melted wax running down the candle—consequently Tavern De Luxe Candles are by far the most economical.

In all colours of the rainbow, they are really most attractive—a great asset to the appearance of the dinner table.

Sports Chatter

L. OLIVEIRA, who won the Hong Kong University Victor Ludorum at their annual athletic meeting last Saturday, badly tore a ligament in his left thigh during the Inter-Hotel Relay, and it is extremely doubtful whether he will be able to participate in any sport for at least a month. This may possibly ruin any chances he may have had in the Coronation Swimming Gala.

Naval Cricketer Flying Home
L. T. Comdr. R. S. Barry, popular skipper of the Navy junior cricket eleven, is leaving for home in the course of the next fortnight. He is flying the entire distance to London, and expects to arrive there on May 2.

Arthur Lay Due In May
A. C. C. C. opening bat last season, when they won the Senior Championship, leaves London on May 3, via Siberia, to take up his appointment with the Hong Kong Broadcasting Committee. He is, however, very doubtful whether he will take any further part in local cricket.

J. P. English, one of the most enthusiastic officials of the Equine Sports Club, left for home last week.

Badminton Aces
P. E. TAN, Captain of the University "A" team, and his partner, P. K. Hui, hold the record for the best performance in the Men's Doubles Badminton League. They have only lost two games. The next leading pair is T. C. Lee and K. L. Yong, also of the University "A", who have conceded only three games.

County Badminton Player
P. OLSON, Constable William Wilson, formerly of the Royal Ulster Rifles, now attached to the Naval Dockyard Police, is also a very good badminton player. He represented Newry, Ireland, in the County Badminton Championship.

The Naval Dockyard Police are training seriously in preparation for their entry into the United Hockey Tournament next season.

Major Milne Transferred
M. AJOR J. D. Milne, the well-known tennis player, will be leaving the Colony on April 16 next. He has been transferred to Colombo.

L. IEUT. J. A. M. Rice-Evans, who has brought Army Rugby in Hong Kong up to its present high level and who is himself no mean performer, has retired from the game after a very fine playing career, during which he has represented the Army in the Inter-Services Tournament in England, secured a Welsh Trial and captained the victorious Army fifteen in the local Triangular Rugby Tournament, during the 1935-36 season. Another well-known Rugby player who will be an absentee henceforth is Surg.-Lieut. Benson, of the Navy, who has also retired after securing a Navy "Cap" and other representative honours at home. Both will be missed badly next season.

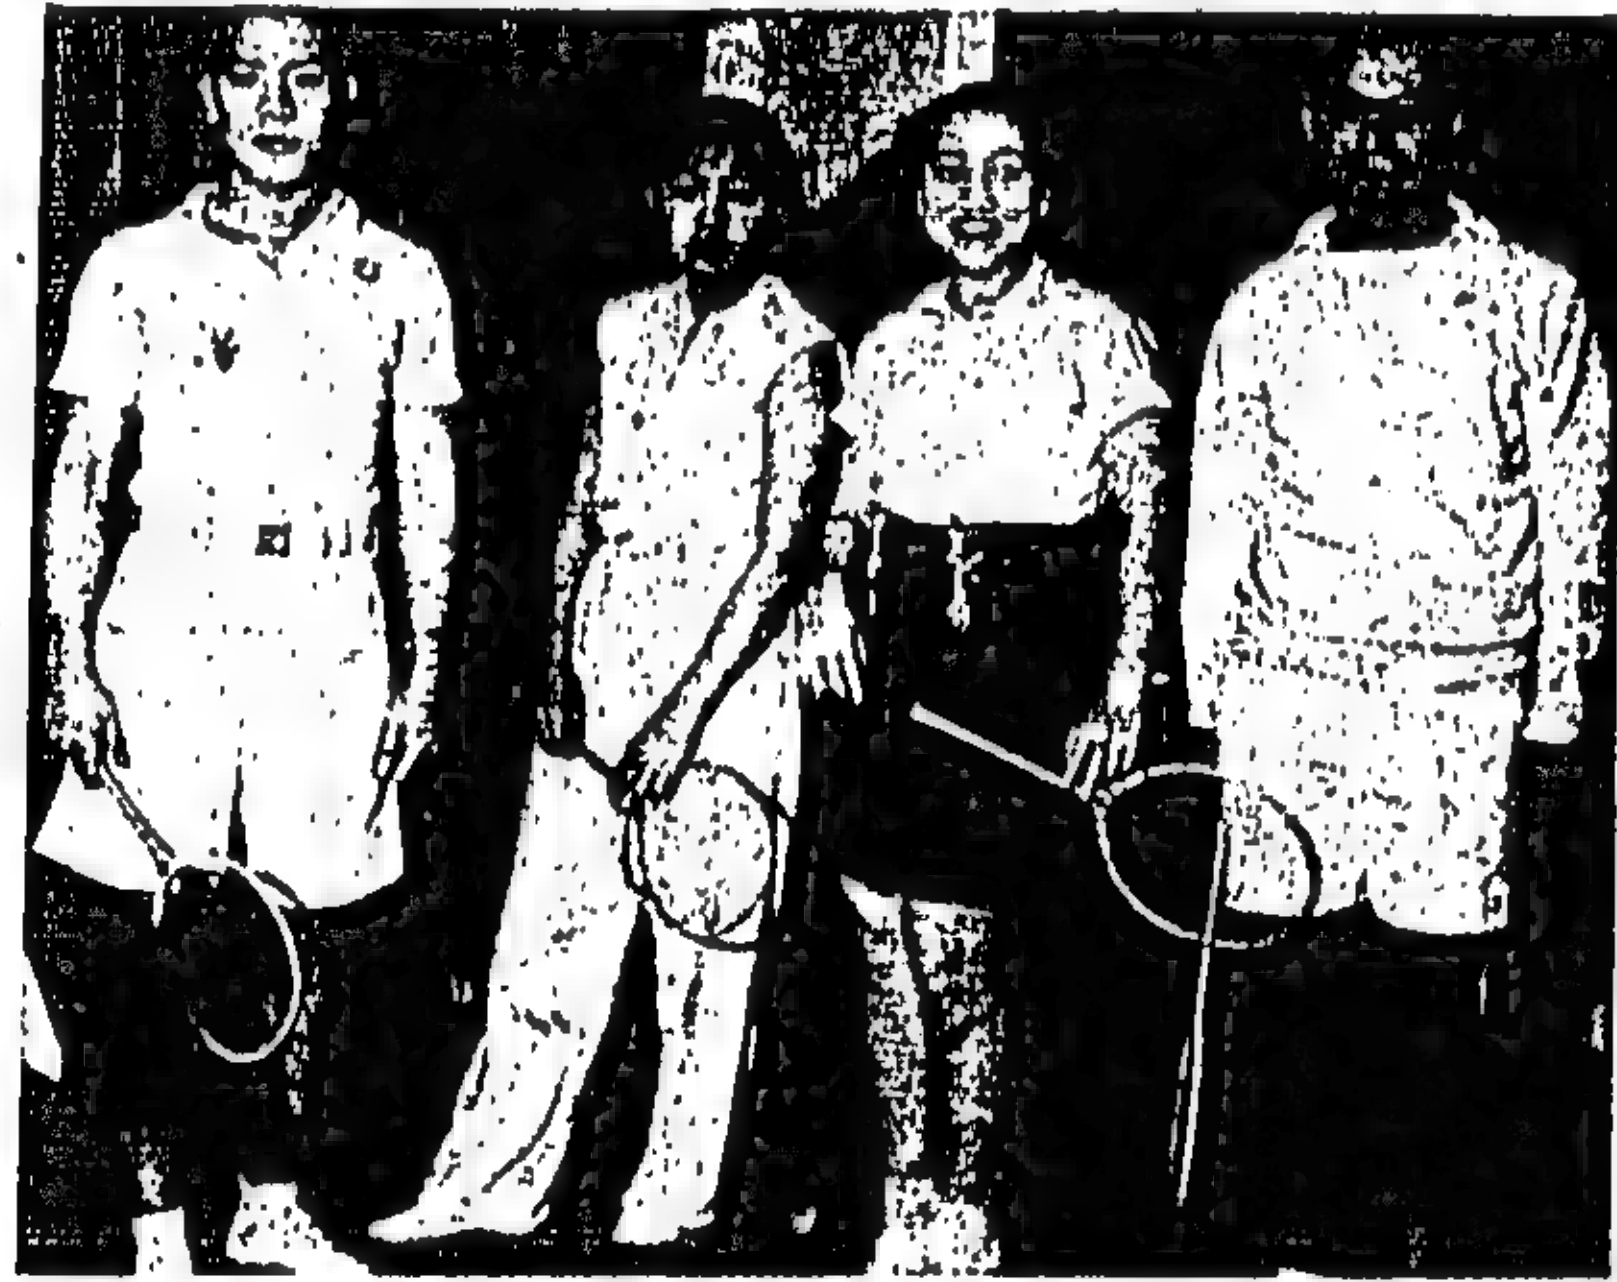

Reed Turns To Badminton

O. NE of the latest converts to badminton is Frank V. Reed, the well-known Hong Kong and Shanghai sportsman. He played his first game in the West Lounge of the European Y.M.C.A. last week and displayed some very fine shots. It will not take him long before he becomes a first class player.

C. F. Needham, a newcomer to the Colony, is likely to be seen in one of the Club's Rugby teams next season.

Patrick H. Wong, left, won the Colony Badminton Singles Championship a week ago last Friday at Club de Recreio when he beat T. C. Lee, right, after a brilliant display. ("Herald" photo).

Schoolboy Given Trial

I. WAS greatly impressed by Maxwell's play for the Kowloon Schools recently and am pleased to see that this promising youngster was given a game for Recreio seniors last week against the Club at right-half.

By the Judge

S. YD. STRANGE, the Club's full-back, and A. Forrow and E. C. Drown, half-backs, will not be available for the Club next season as they will be on home leave at the time. This will mean that several juniors will receive promotion.

Cpl. Revill Going Home

C. PL. Revill, who has represented the Royal Engineers at soccer and at water-polo, will be missed soon. He is leaving for England on the Transport Dorsetshire on April 16.

Tau! Wai-pui, the Colony lawn tennis champion, left, who has been invited to play for China in the Davis Cup series, defeated Major R. L. Withington, right, in their Championship match at the H.K.C.C. last week. Tau! left for Europe last Sunday by the m.v. Victoria. ("Herald" photo).

Campbell Going Home

C. ORPORAL Campbell, the Rifles' and Interport pivot, leaves for home next Friday. He will be greatly missed, not only by his Battalion but by all footballers in the Colony.

R. E. Lee, the Interport cricketer, intends to take up tennis seriously during the coming season. His brother, "Tinker" Lee, is concentrating on swimming.

Pigeon-Racing

P. IGEON-RACING is very popular among the members of the Royal Ulster Rifles. A club has now been formed for this purpose, and Rifleman Farrell and L/Corporal Dawson are among the most enthusiastic members.

L/Corporal Dempster, the Rifles' sprinter, has joined the Naval Yard Police. He hopes to continue with his running. He is the holder of the C. O. Individual Athletic Cup, which he has retained for several years.

Blake's Fine Effort

D. S. BLAKE, the former H. K. University athletic star, gave one of his best performances last Saturday when he clipped 3/5 secs. off his own University record for the Half Mile. With a little more training and coaching Blake would make a fine runner and the equal of anyone in the Colony.

Cox To Play For "Y"

George Cox, of the Royal Corps of Signals, besides being a very fine hockey player, is also a keen water-polo enthusiast. He is likely to play for the European Y.M.C.A. during the coming summer months.

Miss Khoo's Athletic Prowess

South China Athletic Coach

T. S. POON, the athletic coach of South China Athletic Association, takes a very keen interest in his work and is down at Caroline Hill every Tuesday and Friday to assist those who so desire. Poon was for many years one of the fastest short distance runners among the Chinese community.

Miss Gonzalez's Tennis Hopes

MISS Thelma Gonzalez, one of the prominent badminton players of the Kowloon Tong Club, who has given a very good account of herself throughout the season, contemplates taking up tennis this summer.

Rasmussen's New Duties

BERTIE Rasmussen, whom many swimmers in the Colony will recall in connection with the Kowloon Swimming Club, and later with the European Y.M.C.A., has, I hear, taken over the swimming secretarial duties of the Canton Swimming Club. I hear that he may also come down to the Colony for some of the big galas which the European Y.M.C.A. contemplates holding.

Coronation Aquatic Gala

I hear that preparations for a Coronation Swimming Gala, to be held under the auspices of the Victoria Recreation Club, are well in hand, although news of the events comprising the programme will not be forthcoming for some time yet.

Table Tennis At The "Y"

An interesting competition is shortly to be inaugurated in the European Y.M.C.A. in the manner of an inter-floor table-tennis competition, which has so far aroused the keenest interest. Former resident members will recall with pleasure the days of the inter-floor billiards matches, which it is also hoped to revive soon. The table-tennis ladder competition, has also been revived.

Koh Takes Holiday

ROLAND KOH, Hon. Secretary of St. John's Badminton Club, is away on a short holiday but will be back in time to take part in the replay against Kowloon Tong "A" for the runners-up trophy in the "B" Division of the Men's Badminton League.

MACFARLANE, Brookabank and Tuck are among the Football Club lawn bowlers who have returned from leave and will be playing this season. The Club, who are fielding three teams this season, anticipate no difficulty in finding the required number of players.

Gutterres Making Comeback

A. J. GUTTERRES, who has represented the Infantry Company at the annual athletic sports in the past, but not last year owing to an operation, may be seen training at Caroline Hill almost every day. He hopes to regain his place in the team this year.

The annual Sports Meeting of the Indian Recreation Club will be held at Sookunpoo on Sunday, April 25.

F. E. LAWRENCE, who was at one time prominently connected with K.C.C. cricket, made his first appearance on the cricket field for some time when he turned out two weeks ago for the Civil Service second eleven.

Badminton-Cricketers

C. H. SOON, L. H. Tang, K. S. Liew and P. K. Hui, prominent badminton players, have all represented the University at cricket during the past season.

Marton Back To Tennis

O. E. C. MARTON, well-known in local sporting circles for his golfing prowess, is also a very fine cricketer and tennis player. He has entered the Club tennis tournaments in partnership with D. B. Evans, and they are likely to prove a very sound combination.

Marson's Riding Prowess

L. T. MARSON, who plays a good game of cricket for the Royal Artillery, performed very creditably at the Point-to-Point meeting held at Sheung-shui last week.

Broadbridge Plays Golf

GOLF is becoming more and more popular with local cricketers. F. A. Broadbridge of the Kowloon C. C., is the latest to take to the game, and he is now very enthusiastic regarding it.

FOOTBALL CLUB IN LUCK

A. Hyde Lay, for years one of Kowloon Cricket Club's leading lawn bowls skips and a former Colony singles champion, will be playing for the Football Club in the senior division of the League, which will open on May 1.

Empress's Leaden Casket

(SPECIAL TO THE "SUNDAY HERALD")

Vienna, Yesterday.

A 48-year-old mystery, involving two of the most famous figures in European Royalty at the end of the last century, has been revived in Vienna.

The mystery concerns the deaths, in tragic and mysterious circumstances, of the Crown Prince Rudolf, heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, and the Empress Elizabeth, wife of Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria.

FOR YEARS AN ATMOSPHERE OF COMPLETE AND BAFILING MYSTERY HAS SURROUNDED THE DEATHS OF THESE TWO PROMINENT MEMBERS OF THE HAPSBURG FAMILY.

PRINCE RUDOLF WAS ONE OF THE MOST ROMANTIC FIGURES OF HIS DAY. GAY, DASHING AND BOHEMIAN, HE LED A DISSOLUTE LIFE AND MANY SCANDALS WERE ATTACHED TO HIS NAME.

HE WAS FOUND DEAD IN 1881 AT HIS LUNTING LODGE AT MEYERLING, NEAR VIENNA, TOGETHER WITH COUNTESS VECSERA, A MEMBER OF THE AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN ARISTOCRACY FAMED FOR HER BEAUTY.

Prince Liechtenstein's Long Trust Over

Ugly rumours circulated after the discovery of the bodies, some reports stating that the heads of the victims had been battered in with a silver candlestick, which was found covered with blood in the hunting lodge.

Prince Rudolf had married, eight years earlier, Princess Stephanie, daughter of King Leopold of Belgium, but their married life was not a happy one.

Brother Accused

It was therefore alleged that the brother of Countess Vecsere, driven to desperation by the intrigue between his sister and the Prince, which he considered reflected on the family honour, had murdered the lovers.

Another rumour had it that the couple had died from bullet wounds, it being alleged that the Prince had shot the lady and then committed suicide, since they were unable to marry.

Empress's Death

The Empress Elizabeth met her death sixteen years later in Lucerne, Switzerland.

She was stabbed to death with an ordinary file in the street by a man stated to be an Italian anarchist.

More was believed to be behind the murder, however, than political motives.

NOW, A SOLUTION OF THE TWO MYSTERIES, WHICH HAVE NEVER CEASED TO GRIP THE IMAGINATION OF AUSTRIANS AND HUNGARIANS, IS BELIEVED TO LIE IN A PACKET OF PRIVATE LETTERS BELONGING TO THE EMPRESS AND OTHER DOCUMENTS.

Thirteen Years More

The letters, sealed in a lead casket, have been handed to the Supreme Court at Brunn, where they will remain unopened till 1950.

They were reputed to have been found in a secret drawer in the Empress' writing table by the Emperor Franz Joseph a few days after his wife's death.

He gave them to Prince Liechtenstein, the German Ambassador, with the request that they should be preserved but not published, since they contained sensational information relating to the two murders.

Key In The Danube

The Prince sealed the letters in the casket and threw the key into the Danube.

Now he has died and the Supreme Court at Brunn has taken the casket in safe-keeping until 1950, when it will be turned over to the Vienna Academy of Science for opening.

The letters are believed to reveal hitherto unpublished facts concerning the crimes, and the probable reason for withholding of publication is that many of the main actors in the dramas are still living.—Trans-Ocean.

German Genius For The Synthetic

Berlin, Yesterday.

That Germany is using wood for every conceivable purpose, from the manufacture of drain-pipes to fodder for animals, was revealed to-day by the Reich director of forestry.

Through special treatment, he said, wood was being successfully utilised for spouts and drain-pipes instead of copper, galvanized iron, tin or zinc.

Its durability was so great that it could even be used in automobile construction for parts which are subjected to constant wear.

Instead of importing foreign hardwoods for parquet flooring, composition blocks were being made of sawdust and chemicals.

Considerable progress had been made in the utilisation of wood as a fuel for motive power in motor-cars both in the form of wood gas and as benzene obtained through a process of hydrogenation.

Most interesting use of wood was the derivation from it of foodstuffs.

Sugar from wood was being used extensively in the preparation of food for farm animals and attempts were being made to produce fodder with a high albumin content from wood.

Refuse from the various processes could be utilised as fertilizer, he revealed.—Trans-Ocean.

Australia's Need For Settlers

London, Yesterday.

English immigrants into Australia are becoming fewer and fewer, whereas the stream from Italy and Yugo-Slavia to West Australia and Queensland continues undiminished.

Australia, the Primate said, wanted not only farmers but industrial workers.

A similar statement was also made yesterday by the Prime Minister of Victoria, Mr. A. A. Dunstan, who is in London for the Coronation.

Australia still has plenty of room for settlers, he stated.—Trans-Ocean.

ARABIAN LEGENDS OF MOROCCO

THE spirit of the Arabian Nights Entertainments exists wherever there are Arabs in Africa, and many of the legends still current to-day among them in story or song might figure in its pages.

Meknes, in Morocco, has such a legend which is still told to the Arab children. In the days when the sultans reigned, one of them, Moulay Ismael, was a great conqueror, feared throughout the whole of the north west of Africa. Wherever he went, with his warriors and picked troops of Senegalese blacks, he was victorious. Great as a warrior, he was also a great builder, and Meknes to-day has still seventy miles of walls built by him, walls which are more than twenty feet high and ten feet thick, and among them the remains of a stable where 12,000 horses were tethered.

So great and many were the walls and forts he built that it was said he had supernatural aid. Just as Aladdin, according to the legend, he rubbed a ring on his finger and a genie appeared. "Build, gen, build!" commanded Moulay Ismael, and the genie toiled, and built for his master. But one day the genie tired and decided to escape. Fast as his wings could carry him he flew to the end of the earth.

"Now," said the gen, "I am free!" Hardly had the words escaped from his lips when a great cloud rose up, and from behind it a voice cried: "Build, gen, build for Moulay Ismael!"

The gen with a frown looked round and then picked up two huge stones and began to fly back to Morocco to obey the orders of his master. When he had nearly reached Meknes, at Volubilis, he learned that Allah had stayed the arm of the conqueror, and that Moulay Ismael was no more. With a sigh of relief he threw down the two great stones, and there they lie to this day.

No town of Morocco is more impressive than Meknes with its wonderful walls. One of the finest, Mookleh gateways, exists there, a triple arch of great beauty in pointed style supported by graceful columns. This gateway, the Bab Manour, leads to the granaries and stables of Moulay Ismael, and to walk for hundreds of yards between two great walls towering upward on each side is in its unreality like a strange Da Quincey dream experience. But

"The Street Singer"

THE PHILHARMONIC'S FORTHCOMING PRODUCTION

SOME people in speaking of this play jocularly call it "The Street Sleeper," but judging from the way rehearsals are shaping, neither cast nor audience will have much opportunity for sleeping! It has often been said that the play is not well known; perhaps it is not as well known as the last two successes of the Society, so a few words about it will not be out of place.

It was produced at the Lyric Theatre in 1924 with Phyllis Dare as Yvette, Harry Welchman as Bonni, and A. W. Baskcomb as Francois, and had a successful run.

The Story

It is the story of an unsuccessful artist, Bonni, who is being sold up, and who has been seen in Levy, the picture dealer's shop in a desperate state by the Duchess of Versailles. She is so sorry for him that she disguises herself as a street singer, Yvette, and enters his studio, followed by Levy to whom she gives money to buy a picture from Bonni. Levy does not wish to take the money, as he thinks "A good dose of starvation would do him good" but eventually does so, and hands it to Bonni, much to his and his fellow artists' delight, to say nothing of the ladies, who all celebrate the occasion with great gusto.

In the height of the merriment, a message comes from the Duchess of Versailles asking Bonni to attend her reception, and Bonni, who has fallen desperately in love with Yvette, and she with him, has to decide between love and his career. He chooses the latter, leaving Yvette, as Marie, her jealous rival says "Like the rest of us, in the mud."

Bonni arrives at the reception to find that Yvette is really the Duchess, realises what a failure he is, and is about to leave when she stops him, confesses her love for him, and all ends happily.

Musical Numbers

The above, of course, gives no idea of the music, which composed by Harold Fraser-Simson is of the brightest. The first two acts are played in Bonni's studio, and both chorus and principals from Estelle's first number, "A Perfect Lady" to Moulay Ismael, if he loved big walls, had all the love of the East for gardens, and close to where there great walls tall and hardy there is a garden which in all repose, where palm trees raise their graceful curved leaves, and in the paths, star-shaped Quincey dream experience. But Yvette in "Follow Yvette", the Folk Song "Pere Patipou", Francois in "Ow I 'ates wimmon and the Carnival Number keep the fun going fast and furiously both in song and dance. Mention must also be made of the two duets by Francois and Yvette, "Husband Number Two," and "That's what you are to me," which are amongst the best numbers in the play.

The Principals

The Philharmonic has again been fortunate in obtaining good principals. Anne Winter, Mrs. W. L. Alexander, Mrs. D. J. Valentine, and Miss Evelyn Fullerton share the honours amongst the ladies. Anne Winter shows her versatility by singing and dancing her way throughout the play in a part totally different from those she has played in the last two productions of the Society, and she does so delightfully.

She is ably seconded by Mrs. W. L. Alexander, who, although new to Philharmonic productions, has had considerable experience with the Paisley Musical and Operatic Society. Mrs. Valentine presents Yvette, the amorous dressmaker who runs after Francois, the hater of women. Miss Fullerton, another newcomer, plays the ungrateful part of Marie, Yvette's jealous rival in a manner only to be expected of an actress who has presented The Maid in Bernard Shaw's "St. Joan" with success.

Of the men, Gordon Stopani-Thomson is well known to Hong Kong audiences. He plays Bonni, the impecunious artist, while Harry Cockle is his successful friend, Laramand. Comic lead is Bob Henderson, as Francois, Bonni's servant, who "Once spent twelve years of 'all with a woman." Anyone who saw his performance in the Y.M.C.A. pantomime will realise that the part is in good hands.

Noted Referee in New Role Levy, the picture dealer is played by David Kossick, who referees in the match between Bonni and Yvette in a manner reminiscent of his best form on the football field.

Finally, when we say that Cyril Brown produces the play, Lindsay A. Lafford conducts, T. V. Harmon is again responsible for the scenery, and George Goncharoff has arranged the dances and ensembles, and that the play is to be presented at the Queen's Theatre on April 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th at 9.20 p.m. it will be realised that no time should be lost in making an early visit to the theatre to book seats for a show which will found to be the brightest and most cheery entertainment presented to Hong Kong audiences for many a long day.

THIS WEEK ON THE LOCAL SHARE MARKET

Messrs. G. A. Harriman and Co.'s weekly share report and market review issued at noon yesterday states:—

A quieter market has to be reported for the week under review, and with buying orders fewer, rates for the Hong Kong market leaders have receded slightly. Manila has again been disturbed by rumours, and the latest about a possible lowering of the U. S. dollar price for gold, has brought out sellers, and so quotations are generally lower all round in an easy market.

Hong Kong Electrics are sought for at $60, after sales at this figure. China Lights (old) exchanged at $14.70 and have further buyers. Trams came down to $14.75, but close with buyers at $15.00. Star Ferries made $86½ and have further sellers at a shade above this. Telephones (old) have eased to $30 and the (new) to $12¼. Singapore Traction Ords. can be taken at 25/6.

Among Industrials there has been a considerable business done in Cements between $15½ and $15.20 and they close buyers at $15.40. Ropes are now on offer at $5.40.

Ewos rose further to $5.17, at which there are now small sellers.

Dairy Farms are around $25 and Sinceres are wanted at $3.05 after sales at $3.10.

Watsons, cum a 25 cents dividend are either side of $6. Maraman Hong Kong were dealt in at 8/- and 8/3.

Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotels have been a very much quieter market, with sales down to $7.70 cum. There are now buyers near this figure.

Lands sold down to $36 and Realty to $5.85. Humphreys continue in enquiry at $9. Wharfedale have been bought up to $118 and are wanted further a dollar under. Docks are in enquiry at $30¼ after sales at this. Providents (old) closed to transaction at $2.15, but close buyers round $2.17½. Cements were strongly required for throughout the week and were freely dealt in between $15.20/50 closing strong at the latter figure.

Insurance stocks continue firm. Unions are $635 cum, and Cantons $320 buyers. Hong Kong Pines were dealt in at $285. Underwriters are wanted at $1.60. In shipping Indo China deferred, on the satisfactory report, are wanted at $50. Steamboats are available at $9.00.

Raubs were placed at $13¼ and New Goldfields of Venezuela are wanted at $6¼.

Philippine Mining. Rates show an appreciable decline all round. Small business was done in Suyocs at 62 cts, and Consolidated Mines round 5½ cts., also Demonstrations at $1.35.

PRESIDENT ON "GOLD PLAN"

Exists Only In Imagination

Washington, Yesterday.

President Roosevelt, at a press conference yesterday, said he knew nothing of any plan to lower the Government buying price of gold. The Chief Executive pointed out that both he and the Treasury Department had denied knowledge of the existence of any plan to change the gold price.

Romance IS ON THE WAY

when Red Lips reveal White Teeth

Blue eyes or brown, raven curls or Titian—every man has his own ideal of loveliness. But there's one point on which all agree: pretty red lips must reveal really white teeth.

Prove this for yourself. "Maclean" your teeth night and morning and see how soon congratulations will come to you. For Macleans Peroxide Toothpaste gives your teeth new whiteness, new sparkle. No stain can resist Macleans, and it actually safeguards the enamel.

Ask for Macleans by name—it is the original Peroxide Toothpaste and the best.

1887 GOLDEN JUBILEE YEAR 1937

Around the World

FIFTY years ago the first Manufacturers Life policy was written. Since that day the Company has extended its operations until now it has Branch Offices and Agencies throughout the world. The policyholders who constitute the world-wide Manufacturers Life family dwell far apart; they differ in language and customs; but they are united in the confident goodwill they feel towards the Company. Their Life Insurance has brought peace of mind to the present, given stability to the future and ensured independence in old age. Greatest benefit of all—they know their dependents are protected against economic hardships which so often follow untimely death.

S. Y. LIANG SUSTAINS DEEP GASH IN SPILL IN BACK STRAIGHT

Sent To Nursing Home
RANGER BEATS ABLE AMAZON IN FAST RACE
AMBERLEY CAUSES
BIG UPSET

DOUBLE WORTH $1,828.90 TO THREE BACKERS

THE Third Extra Race Meeting, which was favoured by bright, sunny weather with a cool breeze, and which attracted a fairly large crowd, was marred by an accident to Mr. S. Y. Liang, one of the leading Chinese jockeys, in the last race of the day. He became unseated from Tabby Cat in the back straight and suffered a deep cut in his left arm in addition to slight concussion. He was taken in an ambulance to the Yeung Wo Nursing Home.

ENQUIRIES FROM DR. DURRAN, WHO ATTENDED HIM, HOWEVER, ELICITED THE INFORMATION THAT MR. LIANG WAS NOT SERIOUSLY INJURED, BUT UNTIL A THOROUGH EXAMINATION HAD BEEN MADE AT THE NURSING HOME HE WOULD BE UNABLE TO SAY WHETHER ANY BONES HAD BEEN BROKEN.

We were informed later in the evening by Dr. J. W. Anderson, who is in charge of the case at the Nursing Home, that Mr. Liang is not badly injured and that he will be fit to ride in the near future.

Another rider to become unseated was Mr. R. S. T. Bowden, from Langolien in the Rosehill Handicap. In this case, however, he was prepared for the fall as Mr. A. J. Lewis's entry started to buck immediately the barrier went up. Mr. Bowden was able to hold on to the rein and lead the pony back to the stable without any further trouble.

Again high dividends added interest to the Meeting. Mr. C. B. Brown's Amberley, which was very capably handled by Mr. Y. T. Fung, paying a win dividend of $261.20 and a place dividend of $82.20 in the Deep Bay Handicap. This race provided the best finish of the day, Pontiac Bay (Mr. W. H. S. Davis), which paid $40, and Royal Highness (Mr. I. C. Harris), which paid $27.10, being less than a length behind the winner. Able Amazon, one-time Australian champion, sustained yet another defeat, Ranger (Mr. Black) winning by a neck to pay $111.00 for a win and $28.10 for a place. Ranger's time was three-fifths of a second inside Saucy Face's record, but as it went out 5 lbs. under weight for inches the time will not be recognised officially as a track record.

The "Double"—A Great Time (Mr. Proulx) and Amberley (Mr. Fung) was worth $1,828.90 to three successful punters.

Mr. Donald Black, the champion jockey, brought in the only favourite of the day—Bear Claw—in addition to his win on Ranger; while Mr. Fung had two wins in three outings. Mr. "Benny"

HAYWARD AND WODEHOUSE FRUSTRATE I.R.C.

UNDEFEATED STAND
OF 60 AFTER H.K.C.C.
HAD BEEN 27 FOR 7!

JOINT CRICKET CHAMPIONS
FOR 1936-37

TOM HAYWARD, HERO OF MANY INTERPORTS, AND R. L. D. WODEHOUSE SAVED THE HONG KONG CRICKET CLUB YESTERDAY AT THE H.K.C.C. FROM A HEAVY DEFEAT AT THE HANDS OF THE INDIAN RECREATION CLUB IN THEIR PLAY-OFF FOR THE SENIOR LEAGUE CRICKET CHAMPIONSHIP.

At 5.26 p.m. the Club had lost 7 wickets for 27 runs in reply to the Indians' total of 179. Hayward (21 not out) then became associated with Wodehouse (39 not out) and 60 runs were added without further loss to save the Club from what appeared to be certain defeat.

Every credit must be given to Hayward for his fighting innings when all the best batsmen had been dismissed. Baiting in all for 71 minutes, he refused to take any chances; anything off the wicket was left severely alone and anything straight was met with a dead bat. Full-tosses, long-hops and half-volleys failed to tempt him into the rash hitting which had been the downfall of his predecessors, and the only boundaries credited to him were through the slips.

Wodehouse, who was not quite so solid in defence as his partner, also deserves great credit. Naturally a forcing bat, he displayed admirable restraint and only attempted to score off anything very loose.

It is understood that owing to the lateness of the season, the match will not again be replayed and both the names of the Hong Kong C.C. and the Indian R.C. will be inscribed on the shield as joint champions.

Hayward won the toss and sent the Indians in on a hard and fast wicket which was playing fairly true. They were given a good start by Y. el Arculli and A. H. Rumjahn, who scored 22 runs in 30 minutes. Thereafter, runs came steadily and the side were finally dismissed at 4.24 with 179 on the board.

A. H. Madar played the best innings, being very confident against all the bowlers and never looking like getting out. A. Rumjahn (21) hit enterprisingly towards the end and with A. R. Kitchell (24) added 35 valuable runs for the ninth wicket.

Y. el Arculli bowled very well but was surprisingly relieved when he had captured 2 for 6.

LOCAL BISLEY MEETING

PTE. WHITTLE DROPS ONLY ONE POINT IN BIG EVENT

11 MARKSMEN TIE FOR FIRST PLACE

SOME very fine shooting featured the second day's events at the Bisley Meeting, which was contained yesterday at the Kowloon City range under the auspices of the Hong Kong Rifle Association, the weather keeping fine throughout and allowing the events to be run off very smoothly.

With the exception of the smaller cash sweeps, the events were conspicuous for the absence of civilian marksmen. Mr. Cory, of the Dockyard Rifle Club, however, secured first prize in the cash sweep over 300 yards.

The two big events of the day, the Deliberate, 500 Yards in the "R.R." Class, and the Deliberate, 500 Yards in the "X" Class, produced some of the best firing of the day, 11 marksmen tying for first place in the latter event with a score of 22 out of a possible 25, while Pte. Whittle, of the Seaforths, returned a score of 24 out of a possible 25 in the former event.

Like the Services' Meeting, the Bisley Meeting has also provided an event for the 20 best marksmen from the Rapid, Snap and Deliberate events to fire for this Association S. R. Championship Aggregate (500 Yds.).

Competitors who shot for this Association Cup at any time last Friday are informed that it has been found necessary to cancel all scores made in this competition on that day. Those affected will be given another opportunity of firing free of cost on application to the Statistical Officer.

Competitors must use their own discretion as to when they will fire, and in this connection it is pointed out that this competition may be shot for concurrently. The reason for cancellation of last Friday's scores is that a larger target was used and hence the scoring was made much easier.

The following are the detailed results of yesterday's shooting, giving the order of merit, the prize money, rank and name of competitor, unit, and score, respectively:—

The Shooting
The attention of all competitors is drawn to the fact that under the existing regulations, it is necessary to shoot off all ties for the first place in any competition.

As it will be very difficult to find the necessary time for this, competitors are, therefore, warned that ties may be arranged at not more than 30 minutes notice.

Any competitor who is not on the range for the whole period of shooting, runs the risk of missing an opportunity for any tie shooting in which he may be concerned, and an every opportunity will be taken to secure the necessary accommodation for the shooting on those occasions when squadded events finish earlier than shown in the programme the notice board should be examined at frequent intervals.

MONEY-CHANGER'S TRICK

Sent To Prison For Three Months

Ho Kam, 30, an accountant, was charged before Mr. Keen yesterday with larceny by trick of a 100-plastre note. Chan Shun-hoi was charged with receiving. Both pleaded guilty and were sentenced to three months imprisonment.

Sergeant Cashman said complainant, Lau Man-pun, a shop-keeper went to No. 95, Connaught Road Central, a money changer, to change piastre notes. They agreed on $150 for 100 piastres. Complainant gave eight 100-piastre notes to defendant who examined and then returned them. Complainant found one missing. Police questioned defendant, who admitted theft. The note was found on second defendant.

The Rev. C. B. R. Sargent (Headmaster of the Diocesan Boys' School) will address the meeting of the Chinese Christian Fellowship to-night at 8 p.m. at St. Paul's Church Hall (Glencaly).

The R.E.O.C.A. dance which was to have been held on Saturday, 17th April, will now be held on Saturday, 24th April, 1937, at the Peninsula Hotel, Kowloon, commencing at 7.30 p.m.

Eight For R.A.M.C.

The Third Division fixture between St. Joseph's and the Medicals proved to be a very poor game, the latter winning by eight goals to nil after leading by six goals at the interval. The Medicals scored through Harrison (3), Howells (2), Youd (2) and Gantzer.

Bucks, the Saints' goalkeeper, and Rocha, in the defence, are worthy of special praise as they saved their side from an even greater defeat.

Nine Goals Scored

Kwong Wah had an easy task yesterday in the Third Division, when they secured both points from a weak Chinese Police eleven by 9 goals to 1.

Lai Wing-kwong (3), one from a penalty, Lung Ping-kam (4) and Yeung Tse-tong scored for Kwong Wah, Wong Kam replying for the Police.

Liga Score Six

Liga thoroughly deserved their six goals to nil victory over the R.A.S.C. in the Third Division, as there was hardly a period throughout the match when the soldiers looked like making a game of it.

Smith, the R.A.S.C. custodian, is to be commended on the way in which he kept goal, despite the score.

Remedios (2), C. Santos (2), Ablong and H. Santos scored for Liga.

Kowloon Held

A very disappointing Second Division encounter was witnessed at Chatham Road yesterday when Kowloon and Eastern shared two goals apiece. The Kowloon forwards had utilised their opportunities, they might easily have been half a dozen goals in front at the interval, but slowness in the goal area, coupled with an almost complete absence of combination, robbed them of a point.

Eastern opened their scoring through Yuen Poon-wan, from a free kick just outside the penalty area, but Winch equalised during a goal-mouth scramble in the second half.

Fusiliers Disorganised By Injuries

WANKLYN HOLDS UP LEE WAI-TONG

FUNG "BRAINS" OF THE CHINESE ATTACK

DEFEATING the Fusiliers by two clear goals, South China "A" yesterday retained possession of the Senior Shield for yet another season.

There was nothing much for the Caroline Hill team to enthuse about apart from the result itself as they only just managed to keep on top of a team that was severely handicapped through injuries. The Fusiliers did not actually lose the services of any player from the field, but they might just as well have been without Roberts for the whole of the second half. Suffering a strained leg muscle, this winger, after having been out-standing in the first half, was little better than a "passenger" after the resumption, whilst Taylor also fell far below his usual form and was obviously affected by the injury that has kept him out of the side during the Fusiliers' recent outings. Because of these casualties the Fusiliers became disorganised, even a dispirited side, with the result that South China were given a far easier passage than they ought to have had.

Contrary to expectations the level of the football never reached great heights, and it turned out to be a rather lack-lustre Shield Final. The complete subjection of Lee Wai-tong seemed to have an adverse effect on the rest of the South China players, with a few exceptions, and they seldom succeeded in producing their usual rhythmic and incisive attacks. Never can Lee have had such a miserable game, and he will have good cause not to forget Wanklyn for a long time to come.

The Fusilier pivot's game was solely that of "stopper", and he never left the immediate vicinity of the Chinese centre-forward for a single minute. It was not without its humorous side to watch Lee's efforts to elude his "police-man" on several occasions in the second half, in sheer exasperation, he even wandered to the extreme limits of the pitch in an endeavour to break loose from the relentless Fusilier, but to no avail; Wanklyn was there too!

Yet with all this attention Lee obtained his customary goal, albeit a trifle fortunate, as had Wanklyn and Keating left the ball to Rowlands, Lee would not have obtained possession.

This was the only time throughout the course of the game that Lee succeeded in breaking through on his own, and in view of the fact that he scored it served as a pointer to the value of Wanklyn's services to his side.

Fung Excels

Easily the best forward on view was the scheming Fung Cheong. With the soldier halves concentrating so much on his colleagues, he was quick to perceive that there was generally a large gap between halves and forwards, and, taking up a position in this untenanted area, he frequently gained possession easily and initiated attacking movements that were a continual source of trouble to the opposing defence.

Lai Chui-wing seconded his efforts by constantly roving away in the opposite direction to that taken by Lee Wai-tong and attendants, but neither Tay Que-lung nor Tso Kwai-shing made the best use of their chances. The intermediates did not have all their own way against the Fusilier forwards, but the clever central passes of Lau Hing-chol were worthy of mention.

Li Steadler Back

Li Tin-sang experienced a few anxious moments against the wily Roberts in the early stages, but, nevertheless, proved himself a sound defender, even if his partner, Tam Kong-pak, was the more spectacular player. Pau Ka-ping was bent on only once, a flashing drive from Evans taking him by surprise, but, fortunately for South China, it struck the wood-work and rebounded into play.

The Fusiliers were best in defence. Here Wheeler was very stable, while Keating shouldered the amount of work he was called upon to perform with credit. Howlands had several spectacular saves to his credit, a dive at the feet of the advancing Lee Wai-tong being the "hit-bit" of a sterling display.

How big a success Wanklyn was proved by the impotence of Lee, but Taylor and Grindley hardly rose to the occasion. Talbot's clever manoeuvres caused some anxiety to the South China defenders, but he was often remis in the strength of his passes. Roberts had a bright first half, but, like Cookley, his chief trouble was delay in centring. Sullivan was a forceful leader, only his small stature handicapped him—but the real menace in the Fusilier attack was, without a doubt, the tireless Evans.

Evans's Bad Luck

Evans struck the woodwork soon after the change of ends, but two minutes later South China took the lead. Fung King-cheung started the movement with a through pass in the direction of Lee Wai-tong, who edged away when he saw the unmarked Lai Shui-wing waiting for the ball. The latter gathered and pivoted to avoid Keating, advanced a few paces and then gave Rowlands no chance with a powerful low drive.

In the last five minutes the Chinese increased their lead when Lee Wai-tong, hampered by Wanklyn and menaced by Keating, bustled his way into the goalmouth and, following a misunderstanding, tapped the ball into an empty net.

KOWLOON WIN OVER EASTERN

KNOX AND BLAKE IN LIMELIGHT

A full measure of value for their money was forthcoming for visitors to the K.F.C. ground yesterday, where Kowloon secured both points from Eastern by 4 goals to 2 in a Senior League encounter that provided first class entertainment.

Both teams served up some real good football, the work of Knox and Blake in the Kowloon attack proving the outstanding feature of the game. The work of the former alone should have given Kowloon a commanding lead at the interval—he made some beautiful turns almost on the goal-line to send in shots that brought Tang Yat-ming to his knees time after time.

Blake was a tonic in himself, and it was only fitting that the closing stages of the game should find his partner placing him in possession to not a really neat goal.

Bliss Plays Well

Kowloon received full support from a sound intermediate line. Bliss in the pivotal position effectively dominating the wily Soong Ling-sing. Honnball had an unenviable task with Lai Wai-lam, but came through their frequent duels with more than a fair share of credit, and the fact that the Chinese winger netted both goals for his side attaches no blame to him. Bowen was an alert and steady kicker, but Everett gave Jeffreys something of a shock in the first half, when he all but put the ball in his own goal when clearing a corner kick.

Eastern's Fault

Eastern's chief fault was their almost inexplicable neglect of Han Sing-to on the left. His ability to take a ball when on the run always gave him the ascendancy over Roberts. The intermediate line was of no great value either in defence or attack, the main responsibility for the former department falling to Tang Yat-ming and Lai Ting-chol—and they were badly overworked.

White opened the scoring in the first few minutes of the game, but Lai Wai-lam levelled matters soon after. Knox was unfortunate not to secure the lead before the interval but netted the best goal of the match soon afterwards. A misunderstanding between Everett and Bowen gave Lai Wai-lam his second goal. Blake, however, secured the lead from a pass from Knox, while Betts added the fourth just before the final whistle.

JUNIOR SHIELD FINAL TO-DAY

Sappers Should Beat Rifles

NEW RECORD FOR HOLDERS?

The main soccer attraction to-day is the Junior Shield Final between the Royal Engineers, holders for the past two seasons, and the Rifles, which will take place at Sookunpo commencing at 4 p.m.

The Engineers are fortunate in being able to retain their best team for this game as a number of their players will be leaving by the transport next Friday.

The Engineers were nearly surprised by Lyemun in their Semi-Final replay, when they won by the odd goal in seven, but they had otherwise a comfortable entrance to the Final, while the Rifles had to overcome stiff opposition, chief of whom were the Navy, in the Second Round, and South China, in the Semi-Final.

Another important game will be featured in the First Division, between Eastern and the Rifles, at Causeway Bay. In their first game the latter won by the odd goal in three after Eastern had missed a penalty in the closing minutes, but in view of the favourable position the soldiers now hold in the championship race, they will be taking no chances and will be all out for a win.

Ordnance Win

Against the superior combination of the R.A.O.C., the European Police went down heavily in the Third Division, conceding six goals without reply. For practically the whole of the game the Ordnance kept the Police in their own half, Duffield (2), Attoe (2) and Waters (2) netting the goals.

SHORT STORY

The Man In The Yellow Coupe

By WILLIAM SAROYAN

WE used to see him going down the highway fifty miles an hour, and my brother Mike would look kind of sore and kind of jealous.

There he goes, Mike would say. Where in hell do you think he's going?

Nowhere, I guess, I would say. He's in a pretty big hurry for a man who's going nowhere, Mike would say.

I guess he's just turning her loose to see how fast she'll go, I would say.

She goes fast enough, Mike would say. Where the hell can he go from here? Fowler, that's where. That good for nothing little town.

Or Hanford, I would say. Or Bakersfield. Don't forget Bakersfield, because it's on the highway. He could make it in three hours. Two, Mike would say. He could make it in an hour, and three quarters.

Mike was twelve and I was ten, and in those days, 1918, a coupe was a funny-looking affair, an apple-box on four wheels. It wasn't easy to get any kind of a car to go fifty miles an hour, let alone a Ford coupe, but we figured this man had fixed up the motor of his car. We figured he had made a racer out of his little yellow coupe.

We used to see the automobile every day, going down the highway toward Fowler, and an hour or so later we used to see it coming back. On the way down, the car would be travelling like a bat out of hell, rattling and shaking and bouncing, and the man in the car would be smoking a cigarette and smiling to himself, like somebody a little crazy. But on the way back, it would be going no more than ten miles an hour, and the man at the wheel would be calm and sort of slumped down, kind of tired.

He was a fellow you couldn't tell anything about. You couldn't tell how old he was, or what nationality, or anything else. He certainly wasn't more than forty, although he might be less than thirty; and he certainly wasn't Italian, Greek, Armenian, Russian, Chinese, Japanese, German, or any of the other nationalities we know.

I figure he's an American, Mike would say. I figure he's a salesman of some kind. He hurries down the highway, to some little town and sells something, and comes back, taking it easy.

Maybe, I used to say. But I didn't think so. I figured he was more likely to be a guy who liked to drive down the highway in a big hurry, just for the devil of it.

Those were the years of automobile races: Dairo Resta, Jimmie Murphy, Jimmie Chevrolet, and a lot of other boys who finally got killed in race-track accidents. Those were the days when everybody in America was getting acquainted with the idea of speed. My brother Mike often thought of getting some money somewhere and buying a second-hand car and fixing it up and making it go very fast. Sixty miles an hour maybe. He thought that would be something to do. It was the money, though, that he didn't have.

When I buy my hack, Mike used to say, you're going to see some real speed. You ain't going to buy no hack, I would say. What you going to buy a hack with?

I'll get money some way, Mike used to say. The highway passed in front of our house on Railroad Avenue, just a half mile south of Rosenberg's. Rosenberg's was four brothers who bought figs, dried peaches, apricots, nectarines, and raisins, and put them up in nice cartons and sent them all over the country, and even to foreign countries in Europe. Every summer they hired a lot of people from our part of the town, and the women packed the stuff, and the men did harder work, with hand-trucks. Mike went down for a job, but one of the brothers told him to wait another year till he got a little huskier.

That was better than nothing, and Mike couldn't wait to get huskier. He used to look at the pulp-magazines for the advertisements of guys like Lionel Strongfort, and Earl Liederman, and Charles Atlas, them giants of physical culture, them big guys who could lift a sack of flour over their heads with one arm, and a lot of other things. Mike used to wonder how them big guys got that way, and he would go down to Cosmos Playground and practice chinling himself on the cross-bars, and he would do a lot of running to develop the muscles of his legs. Mike got to be pretty solid, but not much huskier than he had been. When the hot weather came Mike stopped training. It was too hot to bother.

We started sitting on the steps of our front porch and watching the cars go by. In front of the highway were the railroad tracks, and we could look north and south for miles because it was all level land. We could see a locomotive coming south from town, and we could sit on the steps of our front porch and watch it come closer and closer, and hear it too, and then we could look south and watch it disappear. We did that all one summer during school vacation.

There goes locomotive S. P. 797, Mike used to say.

There goes Santa Fe 485321, I used to say. What do you figure is in that box-car, Mike?

Raisins, Mike would say. Rosenberg's raisins, or figs, or dried peaches or apricots. Boy, I'll be glad when next summer rolls around, so I can go to work at Rosenberg's and buy me that hack.

Boy, I would say. Just thinking of working at Rosenberg's used to do something to Mike. He would jump up and start shadow-boxing, puffing like a professional fighter, pulling up his fists every once in a while, and grunting. Bang bang bang, he used to say.

Boy, what he was going to do at Rosenberg's.

It was hell for Mike not to have a job at Rosenberg's, making money, so he could buy his old hack and fix the motor and make it go sixty miles an hour. He used to talk about the old hack all day, sitting on the steps of the porch and watching the cars and trains go by. When the yellow Ford coupe showed up, Mike would get a little sore, because it was fast. It made him jealous to think of that fellow in the fast car, going down the highway fifty miles an hour. When I got my hack in shape, Mike used to say, I'll show that guy what real speed is.

We used to walk to town every once in a while. Actually it was at least once every day, but the days were so long and so many dreams were going on in us at the same time that every day seemed like a week and it would seem like we hadn't been to town for a week, although we had been there the day before. We used to walk to town, and around town, and then back again. There was nowhere to go and nothing to do, but we used to get a kick out of passing the garages and used cars lots on Broadway, especially Mike's.

One day we saw the yellow Ford coupe in Pete Mallock's garage on Broadway, and Mike grabbed me by the arm. There it is, Joe, he said. There's that racer. Let's go in.

We went in and stood by the car. There was no one around, and it was very quiet.

Then the man who owned the car stuck his head out from underneath the car. He looked like the happiest man in the world.

Hello, said Mike.

Howdy, boys, said the man who owned the yellow coupe.

Something wrong? said Mike.

Nothing serious, said the man. Just keeping the old boat in shape.

You don't know us, said Mike.

We live in that white house on Railroad Avenue, near Walnut.

We see you going down the highway every day.

Oh, yes, said the man. I thought I'd seen you boys somewhere.

My brother Mike, I said, says you're a salesman.

He's wrong, said the man.

I waited for him to tell us what he was, if he wasn't a salesman, but he didn't say anything.

I'm going to buy a car myself next year, said Mike. I figure I'll get me a fast Chevrolet.

He did a little shadow-boxing, just thinking about the car, and then he got self-conscious, and the man busted out laughing.

Great idea, son, he said. Great idea.

He crawled out from under the car and lit a cigarette.

I figure you go about fifty miles an hour, said Mike.

Fifty-two to be exact, said the man. I hope to make sixty one of these days.

I could see Mike liked the fellow very much, and I knew I liked him. He was younger than we had imagined; he was probably no more than twenty-five, but he acted no older than a boy of fifteen or sixteen. We thought he was great.

Mike said, What's your name? Mike could ask a question like that without sounding silly.

Bill, said the man. Bill Wallace. Everybody calls me Speed Wallace.

My name's Mike Flor, said Mike. I'm pleased to meet you. This is my kid brother Joe.

Mike and the man shook hands, and the man said, And I'm pleased to meet you. And you, he said, looking at me. Mike began to shadow-box again. We felt swell.

How would you boys like a little ride? said the man.

O boy, said Mike. I was a little scared, but we jumped into the yellow coupe, and the man drove out of the garage, on down Broadway, and then we crossed the railroad tracks, just in front of Rosenberg's. That was where the highway began, and the man opened up to show us a little speed. We passed our house in no time and pretty soon we were tearing down the highway forty miles an hour, then forty-five, then fifty, and pretty soon the speedometer said fifty-one, fifty-two, fifty-three, and the car was rattling like anything.

By the time we were going fifty-six miles an hour we were in Fowler and the man slowed down, then stopped. It was very hot.

How about a cold drink? he said.

We got out of the car and walked into a store. Mike drank a bottle of strawberry soda-water, and so did I, and then the man said to have another. I said no, but Mike drank another. The man drank four bottles of strawberry.

Then we got into the car and he drove back very slowly, not more than ten miles an hour, talking all the time about the car, and how fine it was to be able to go down a highway fifty miles an hour.

Do you make money? Mike said.

Not a nickel, said the man. But one of these days I'm going to build myself a racer and get into the County Fair races, and make some money.

Boy, said Mike.

He let us off at our house, and we talked about the ride for three hours straight.

It was swell. Speed Wallace was a great guy.

In September the County Fair opened. There was a dirt track out there, a mile around. And we read the advertising cards on fences that said there would be some automobile races this year.

One day we noticed that the yellow Ford coupe hadn't gone down the highway a whole week.

Mike jumped up all of a sudden when he realized it.

That guy's in the races at the Fair, that's what, he said. Come on, let's go.

And we started running down Railroad Avenue.

It was nine in the morning, and the races wouldn't begin till around two-thirty, but we ran just the same.

In the first place we had to get to the Fair Grounds early so we could sneak in. It took us an hour and a half to walk and run to the Fair Grounds, and then it took us two hours more to sneak in. We were caught twice, but finally we got in.

We climbed into the grandstand and everything looked okay-dokay. There were two racing cars on the track, one black, and the other green.

After a while the black one started going around the track. When it got around to where we were sitting we both jumped up because the guy at the wheel was the man who owned the yellow coupe. We felt swell. Boy, he went fast and made a lot of noise. And plenty of dust too, going around the corners.

The races didn't start at two-thirty, they started at three, and the grandstands were full of excited people. Seven racing cars got in line, then each was cranked, and the noise they made was very loud and very exciting. Then the race started and Mike started acting like a crazy man, talking to himself, shadow boxing, and jumping around.

It was the first race, a short one, twenty miles, and Speed Wallace came in fourth.

BRIDGE NOTES

BY ELY CULBERTSON

A Peculiar Analysis

I suppose I must thank the American half of my ancestry for a trait that is prevalent in these United States: a passion for debunking. Whenever I read provocative statements, particularly on the subject of contract bridge, I cannot resist examining into the facts with [I admit] an impish desire to spot a fallacy. Late-ly I have found the foreign press rich territory for looking. If I have seemed to take particular delight in pointing my shafts at England this has been solely because it has offered, virtually on a silver platter, such rich booty. Here is a hand that was "analyzed" in a British bridge magazine. South, dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

Exactly how a four heart contract was reached is not important. Over here a safer contract would be reached, as follows:

South West North East
1 spade Pass 2 clubs Pass
2 hearts Pass 3 hearts Pass
4 clubs Pass 6 clubs [final bid]

By his failure to go ahead in hearts, even after North's raise, South would indicate his four card length and ask further confirmation of North's trump support. Not having four hearts, North would proceed with his minor suit.

As played at the actual four heart contract West opened the diamond king, East overtook and returned the deuce. West won and played a third round, East discarding a club and declarer ruffing. Now I quote:

"Of course, South was defeated. South could not have made the contract even if he had discarded a spade on the third diamond instead of ruffing it. West would continue with a fourth diamond, East throwing his second club whether or not dummy should ruff."

I found two phrases of the above particularly irritating. The first was "of course," the second "even if," which implied that that would have been the correct play. [I have italicized them for readers' convenience.] I must disagree with both—violently!

South certainly should, ruff the third diamond, and of course can make the contract! After ruffing [and noting that West showed a six card diamond suit] South should lay down the ace and queen of trumps. The jack falling from West merely would confirm the correct decision to play against a 4-2 trump division with the greater length, of course, in the East hand, which did not hold six diamonds. After these trump leads declarer calmly should begin running the club suit. East could ruff in whenever he chose. Whether he should return a trump or a spade, it would be an elementary matter to hold him to one trump trick.

Certainly this line of play cannot be attacked on the ground that it is "double dummy." Even without the hint given by the long diamond suit the odds are against a 3-3 break in trumps and it is, therefore, unsound to attempt to draw trumps after being shortened on the third diamond. The English analysis must remain an unsolved mystery, to this commentator, at least.

TO-DAY'S QUESTION

Question: What is the rule covering a call other than a pass, by a defender after the auction is closed?

Answer: Declarer may require the other defender to lead a specified suit when next it is his turn to lead.

The next race was forty miles, and Speed Wallace came in second. The third and last race was seventy-five miles, seventy-five times around the track, and the thirtieth time around Speed Wallace got in front, just a little way, but in front all the same.

Mike went crazy. He acted like a maniac, and then something went wrong, the inside front wheel of Speed Wallace's racing car busted off, and the car turned a furious somersault, away up into the air, and everybody saw Speed Wallace flying out of the car, and everybody saw the car smash him against the wooden fence. And Mike started running down the grandstand, to get closer. I ran after him and I could hear him swearing.

The race didn't stop, but a lot of mechanics got Speed Wallace's wrecked car out of the way, and carried Speed Wallace to an ambulance, and while the other cars were going around the track for the seventieth time a man got up and told the people Speed Wallace had been instantly killed.

That fellow, Mike said, he got killed. That fellow who used to go down the highway in that yellow Ford coupe, he got killed, Joe. That fellow who gave us a ride to Fowler and bought us drinks.

When it got dark, walking home, Mike started to cry a little. Just a little. I could tell he was crying from the way his voice sounded, but he didn't really cry. You remember that swell guy, Joe, he said. He was the one who got killed.

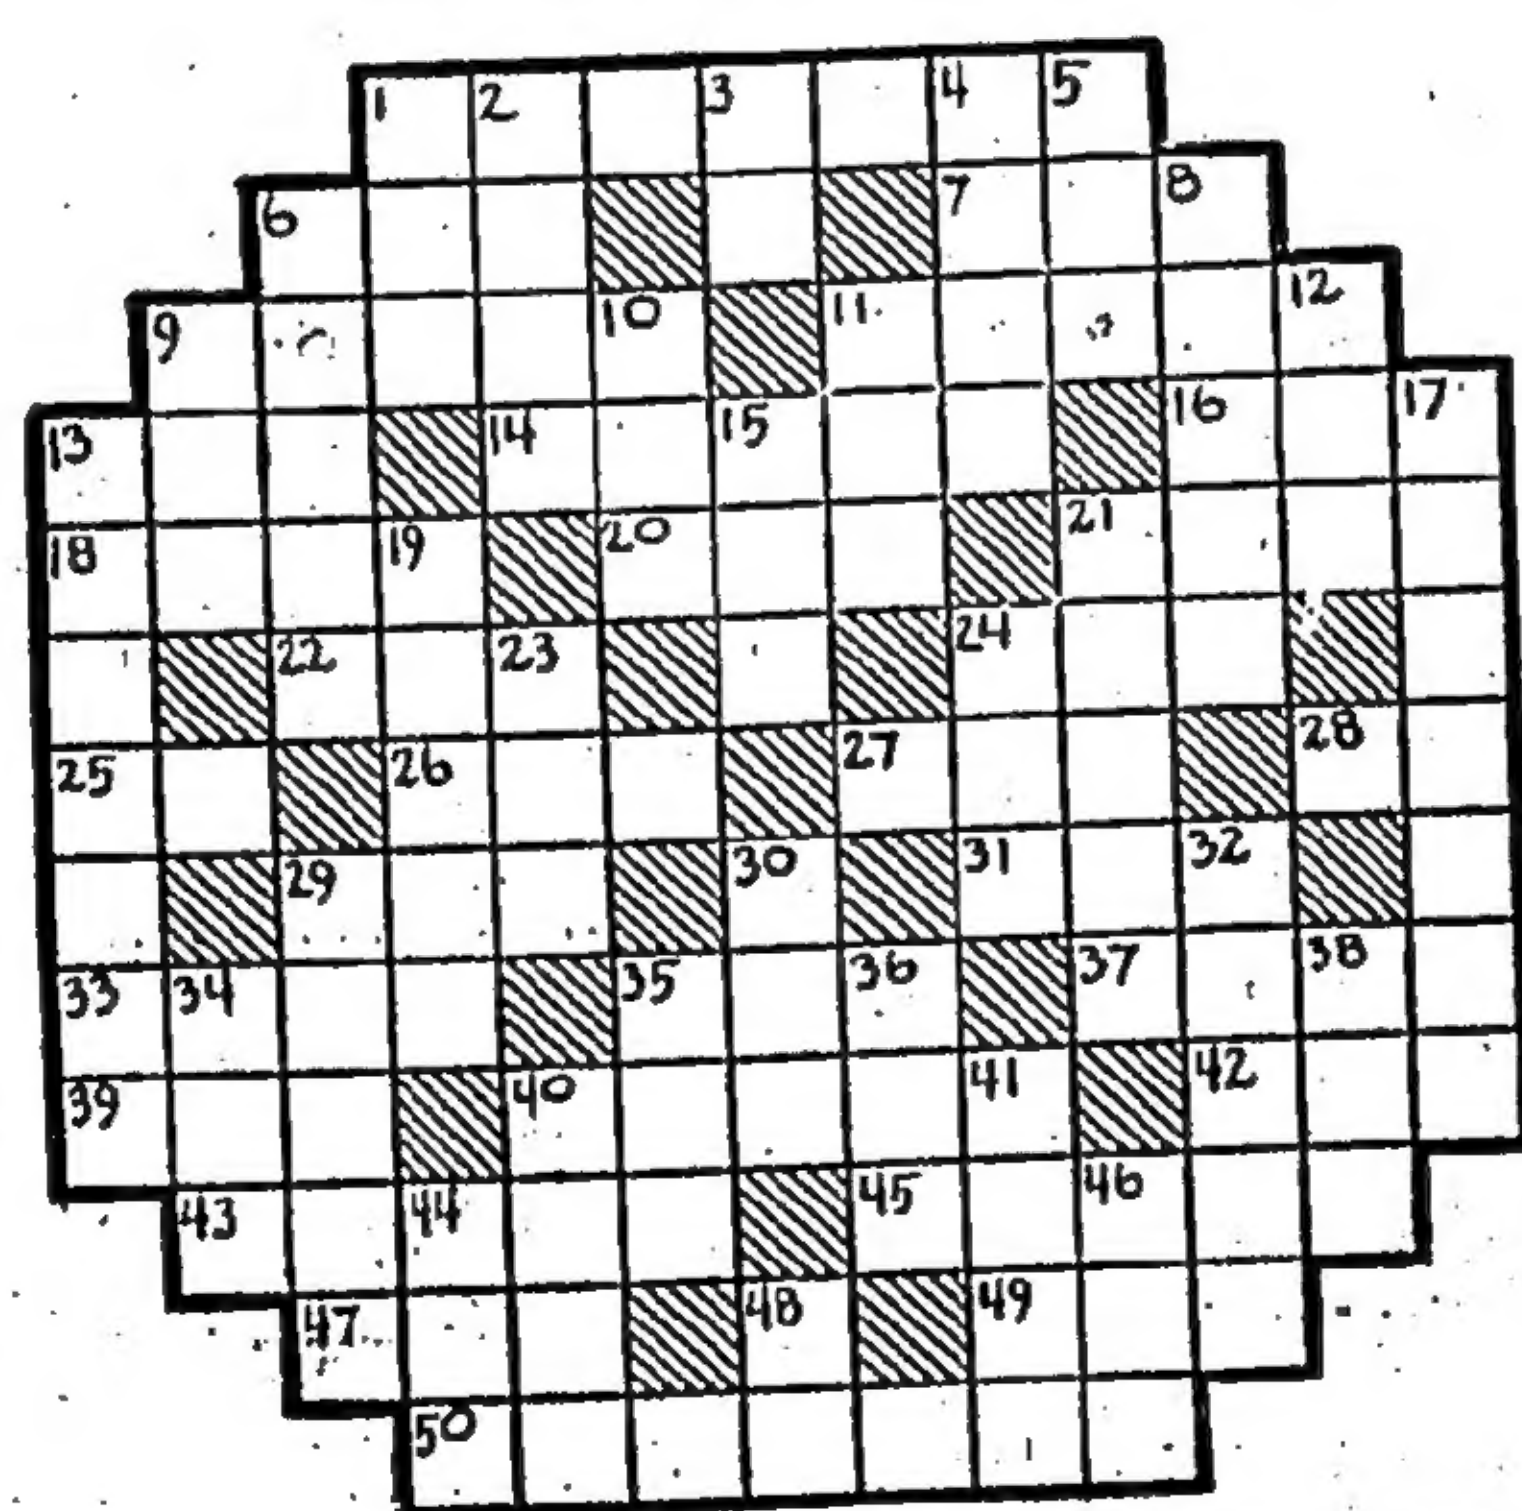

We started sitting on the steps of our front porch again, watching the cars go by, but it was sad. We knew the fellow in the yellow coupe wouldn't go down the highway again. Every once in a while Mike would jump up and start shadow-boxing furiously, only it wasn't the way it used to be: he wasn't happy, he was sore, and it looked like he was trying to knock hell out of something in the world that caused such a thing to happen. Bang, bang, bang, he used to say.

And I know exactly how he felt, and how rotten it was for a thing like that to happen to a guy like that.

Colourful, Sparkling New Ideas for Special Party Menus

By FRANCES LEE BARTON

Dress Up Your Table and Please Your Guests With These Gay Dishes

Are you giving a party soon? If not, you'll probably want to after you read the recipes I'm telling you about today. For these are all real party dishes—bright and pretty to look at and just as delicious as they look.

All these dishes are made with Jell-O for it's so bright and colourful that it seems to give just the right festive note to your table. You can serve it plain, or dress it up in endless ways with fruits, nuts or berries. Here are a few suggestions for glorifying plain Jell-O:

Jell-O Cubes
Mould Jell-O in shallow pan. When firm, mark out in squares. Dip pan in warm water to loosen Jell-O. Fan may be inverted to turn out cubes or they may be loosened with spatula and lifted out with spoon. File in sherbet glasses.

Jell-O Flakes
Mould Jell-O in shallow pan. When firm, break into bits with spoon, or force through ricer. Serve in sherbet glasses, plain or combined with fruit or whipped cream.

Jell-O Twinkles
Fill sherbet glasses half full of dissolved Jell-O mixture. Chill until firm. Prepare remaining Jell-O for Jell-O Flakes and use to fill sherbet glasses.

Jell-O Combinations
Fill sherbet glasses half full of Orange Jell-O Cubes, then fill with Lime Jell-O Cubes. (Raspberry Jell-O Cubes and Lemon Jell-O Cubes also make an attractive combination.) Or, prepare Jell-O Twinkle, using Lime Jell-O for base and Lemon Jell-O for flakes.

Layered Jell-O
Chill one layer of Jell-O until firm, then add another layer; repeat as desired. Fruit may be added between layers and two or more colours of Jell-O may be used.

And here are two suggestions for desserts:

Layered Peach and Banana Mould
1 package Lemon Jell-O 1/2 cup sliced, sliced peaches 1 banana, sliced
1 pint warm water 1 tablespoon sugar
Dissolve Jell-O in warm water. Arrange sliced peaches on bottom of mould. Pour on warm Jell-O, being careful not to disarrange peaches. Add banana. Chill until firm. Unmould. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired. Serves 6.

Orange Moss
1 package Lemon Jell-O 1/2 cup orange juice 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 1/2 cups warm water 1/4 to 1 cup heavy cream
Dissolve Jell-O in warm water. Add sugar, orange juice, and rind. Chill until cold and syrupy. Fold in cream, whipped only until thick and shiny, but not stiff. Chill until slightly thickened. Turn into mould. Chill until firm. Unmould. Serves 6 to 8.

PARIS 40-HR. WEEK
DECREE PROTESTS

GOVERNMENT NOT TO BE SEVERE

Paris, Yesterday.
The agitation by French retail trade organisations which followed introduction of the 40-hour week, has led to the decision of the economic committee of the Chamber of Deputies to bring up the question in Parliament next Wednesday.

The Ministers of Labour and the Interior have instructed the prefects in the provinces not to prosecute shop-owners who keep their shops open on Mondays in spite of the Government decree forbidding opening on that day.

The Association of French
Bankers, according to a newspaper report, has also protested to the Premier, M. Leon Blum, against introduction of the five-day week in the banking and insurance business.

The bankers, says the report, point out that the five-day week is impracticable in banking and insurance.

Meanwhile the labour unions are demanding extension of the five-day week scheme to the postal service, garages and even barbers.

TRIBUTES TO JAPANESE 'DIVINE WIND' FLIERS

SPECULATORS REASSURED

Shake-Out In Metal Markets

London, Yesterday.
The general weakness which developed in the principal exchange, commodity and security markets on Wednesday on rumours that the United States Government intended to reduce its buying price of gold continued until almost the close of dealings in London yesterday.

It was checked when President Roosevelt informed the Press that he knew nothing of such intended action.

The effect of the rumours was to bring about a considerable liquidation of speculative positions and "The Times" says that the technical position of the markets has, in consequence, been strengthened. —British Wireless.

LONDON WARM IN PRAISE AND APPRECIATION

London, Yesterday.
"Japan can no longer be regarded as negligible in the air," is the outstanding reaction to the amazing flight from Tokyo to London of the Divine Wind.

The flight, together with the goodwill message the airmen so dramatically delivered, to-day evoked a particularly warm and appreciative welcome in the British press.

The air correspondents of the London papers comment at length on the machine's remarkable qualities and the navigation skill of the pilot.

Reflecting the general tenor of the comment, the "Daily Telegraph," in a leading article on Japan's aviation triumph, says that no single event could more triumphantly symbolise the vast progress Japan is making between the nations of the world.

"By this performance she has given a new demonstration of the remarkable capacity of her people to keep abreast of scientific development elsewhere.

"She can no longer be regarded as negligible in the air," the journal concludes. —Reuter.

The "Divine Wind" used Shell spirit throughout the flight.

TO TOUR EUROPE
The fliers expect to leave Croydon in the Divine Wind on Friday for a trip to Berlin, Belgium and France.

Their machine is being overhauled and being made ready for the flight at Croydon, where it is stated that the engine is in perfect condition. —Reuter.

Gallant Exploit

London, Yesterday.
The newspapers pay warm tributes to the Japanese airmen who,
in their aeroplane Divine Wind, yesterday accomplished an outstanding performance in the history of aviation by reaching London after a 9,800 miles flight from Tokyo in 94 hours 18 minutes.

Referring to the message of goodwill which these Coronation visitors have delivered to Britain, the "Times" says the gallant exploit has been rounded off by a graceful gesture and Prince Chichibu, who reaches these shores on Monday, will find his country higher than ever in the esteem of the British public.

Dramatic Expression

The "Morning Post" says it is as well that goodwill should be

CRITICAL STAGE IN STRIKE

GENERAL MOTORS,
CANADA

NO COMPROMISE

Ottawa, Yesterday.
The most critical stage of the strike of General Motors employees in Canada has been reached.

The company intends to reopen the plant while the strikers have declared that men going to work will be regarded as strike breakers.

The organisers of the strike state that if General Motors breaks the strike in Canada, no work will be done in the Company's plants in the United States.
The declaration, however, was later rescinded for fear that if such a step was taken it would be regarded as a threat. —Reuter.

CHANGING THE GUARD AT WINDSOR

King And Daughters
Watch Ceremony

London, Yesterday.
The ceremony of changing the guard was enacted in Windsor Castle to-day, where the Court is at present in residence.

The King, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose watched the ceremony from the quadrangle, while the Queen looked on from a window and waved to the crowd of spectators. —Reuter.

PARIS NEWSPAPER RESEARCH

Paris, Yesterday.
An institute for newspaper research is to be founded in Paris in the near future, according to press reports.

The new institute's task will be not only to study the present and past history of the press but also to issue from time to time reports on the results of its research work for information for journalists and the general public. —Trans-Ocean.

emphasised just now when a through-going Anglo-Japanese rapprochement is again in sight.
The "Daily Telegraph" says the message gains much in significance by the manner of its delivery, which has given dramatic expression to the sympathy conveyed from the island people of the East to the island people of the West.

The "News Chronicle" says that to improve our communications is something but to improve mutual understanding between nations is a much greater thing. —British
